LIVERPOOL MOBSLOOT STORES

Armed Troops Have Difficulty in Suppressing Strike Rioters

By International News Service.

Liverpool, August 4.—Following a night of rioting in the general strike, soldiers, armed with fixed bayonets, and policemen restored order early today. Time and again the troops and police charged the mobs of rioters and looters before they were dispersed about 3 o'clock.

There was an extension of the walkout when the street car employes struck today to enforce their demand for back pay.

The situation is still serious and martial law exists in the business and residential districts. The trouble has been aggravated by the strike of part of the policemen, about one-half of the force being out.

Pillaging spread across the Mersey River to Birkenhead, where many shops were wrecked. Women led mobs that broke into jewelry shops. Before the looters were subdued $100,000 damage had been done.

Parts of Liverpool looked like a bombarded portion of the old Western battle front. Troops, supported with machine guns, and police patrolled the streets and there were frequent clashes between them and the mobs.

There was a violent outbreak in Stove Lane where rioters attacked a motor lorry loaded with policemen. Sticks, stones and bottles were used

RUMANIANS AT THE GATES OF BUDAPEST

Paris, Aug. 4.—Disregarding the orders of the peace conference, Rumanian troops invading Hungary have entered the suburbs of Budapest, according to a report received here today.

The Rumanian leaders are said to have sent word that they have no intention of halting their advance.

The new development may make it necessary for the allies to exercise economic pressure to enforce their demands upon Rumania.

Entente leaders at the peace conference are opposing negotiations with the Hungarians until the situation at Budapest clears up and a stable government there is assured.

Hines and "Big Four" Heads Confer to Avert Tieup

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Heads of the "Big Four" brotherhoods were called into conference today by Railways Director Hines in an effort to clarify the whole situation growing out of the demands of the men for higher wages and their evident unwillingness to wait for the creation of a commission to pass upon the wage question.

Besides the "Big Four," B. M. Jewell, acting president of the railway employes department of the American Federation of Labor, was in attendance. It is under this department that the railway shopmen, now taking a nation-wide strike vote, are organized.

According to union leaders, 150,000 railway shopmen already have left their work, and the strike is spreading.

Jewell, following the conference with Director Hines, was to go to the White House to present the shopmen's case directly to the President and explain their reluctance to wait for the creation of a wage commission to take up their demands. The appointment was arranged by Jewell's request.

CLERKS MAKE DEMANDS.

The railway clerks, freight handlers, express and station agents are planning action similar to that taken by the shopmen, it was stated today by J. J. Forester, grand president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handler, Express and Station Employes.

A referendum, in effect a strike ballot, he said, will be taken upon whatever reply the Railroad Administration makes to pending demands for a wage increase and improved working rules. The organization comprises 450,000 members. Demands for a forty-four-hour week, overtime and a thirty-cent increase in wages have been made and the brotherhood expects a definite reply immediately, he added.

IS ECONOMIC TRAP.

"When that reply is received," Forester continued, "if it is, not of the nature that goes along with fair proposition we have made, it will be put out to the employes immediately for their action. The pressure from the employes for a vote on the answer

BROOKLINE WAR HEROINE DIES OF TYPHOID

Miss Eleanor Saltonstall, 25, Won Croix de Guerre for Nursing in France

Miss Eleanor Saltonstall of the Back Bay and Brookline younger set, who was decorated with the Croix de Guerre for her efficient war nursing in France, is dead from typhoid fever at Portland, Ore.

She returned from France last Spring. She went from Boston to the Pacific Coast to join Mrs. Helen Russell at Santa Barbara, Cal. Mrs. Russell's husband, Harold Russell, died in war service last year.

Miss Saltonstall planned to return early by automobile with Mrs. Russell and the latter's son. They had motored as far as Portland, Ore., where both Mrs. Russell's son and Miss Saltonstall were stricken with typhoid. Miss Saltonstall died on Saturday.

She was twenty-five years old and the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Middlecott Saltonstall of Chestnut Hill. She was a member of the Norfolk Hunt and Chilton Club.

TAKE BELL-ANS BEFORE MEALS

LANSING TO TELL WHAT HE DID AT VERSAILLES

Called Before the Senate Committee Now Holding Treaty Hearings

Washington, Aug. 4.—Secretary Lansing will appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Wednesday to testify as to his participation as one of the American peace commissioners in the making of the Treaty of Versailles, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee, announced today when it resumed its open hearings on the treaty.

Today's session of the committee was occupied with the testimony of Norman H. Davis, one of the American economic experts at Versailles, as to the ability of Germany to pay the war bill the allied and associated powers had presented to her.

Davis said he did not believe that Germany would be able to meet the demands made on her. Under a plan by which the American delegates were largely responsible, it was to be determined within the next six months by the reparation commission just how much Germany would be able to pay. Four months were to be allowed to Germany in which she might determine to what extent she could pay for the damage she did in the war and the other two to the reparation commission that Germany's bill might be drawn up and presented to her in its final form.

While the export of gold and securities by Germany was expressly forbidden by the treaty, Davis said, unless sanctioned by the reparation commission, there was nothing in his judgment, to prevent the extension of credit to Germans by Americans. He said it was entirely up to the American manufacturer to determine whether he wanted to give Germans credit or not, especially as German securities would "not prove attractive" until the reparation commission had determined upon a fixed policy for dealing with Germany.

WORCESTER BOY KILLED BY AN AUTO AT KEENE

Keene, N. H., Aug. 4.—While waiting beside the road Charles Rockwell, aged seventeen, of Worcester, Mass., was killed by an automobile driven by Arthur J. Grant of this city.

Grant had swerved his car to one side to avoid running into another machine and it struck the boy.

All Cargo Carriers Must Double Life-Boats

Orders to double their present equipment of life-boats were received today by all Boston operators and owners of cargo carrying vessels from the United States Board of Supervising Inspectors.

Under the La Follette Shipping Bill, which went into effect just before the war, cargo vessels were required to carry enough life-boats to provide space for every person on board.

Experience showed, especially in the war, that a sinking vessel usually listed so far to one side or the other that the lifeboats on the high side could not be lowered. Loss of life resulted.

The Board of Supervising Inspectors recently decided that cargo boats must carry on each side enough lifeboats to care for all on board.

This new order does not apply to passenger vessels, which carry life rafts, in addition to lifeboats.

Disorder Feared When Cars Resume Operation With Non-Union Crews

Providence, Aug. 4.—State Guards may be called out to suppress disorder, in case the striking trolleymen of Rhode Island try to stop the operation of the street cars with non-union labor tomorrow, according to rumors prevalent here today.

These reports went into circulation as soon as it became practically certain that the receivers of the Rhode Island Company would attempt to resume car service within the next forty-eight hours.

All reasonable hope of compromise vanished today. The receivers declare they are acting on court order and have said their last word. The 2,700 strikers who have tied up transportation for weeks refuse all the arbitration proposals made to them, and say they will "stick" for 60 cents an hour and an eight-hour day.

Armed with a Superior Court order directing them to run the cars, the receivers went into conference today to discuss methods of putting the order in effect.

There are said to be enough strike breakers available to put every car in Rhode Island back in commission, but fear was expressed that the appearance of the rolling stock in the streets might lead to violence.

15,500 SOLDIERS AT HOBOKEN TODAY

New York, Aug. 4.—Five transports with 15,500 veterans of the famous Second Division of the American army were scheduled to dock at Hoboken today. The Virginian led the string of transports, bearing the Twenty-third Infantry, one of four American units first thrown into the counter-drive of the allies.

ARREST OF 'MASTER MIND'

Accused of Certifying Turks as Syrians in Plot to Escape From United States

James M. G. Fay, charged by the Federal authorities with being the master mind of a group of persons engaged in putting out fraudulent passports, surrendered today.

A warrant had been issued charging him with conspiring with others to certify Turks as Syrians, and so spirit them out of America back into their own country. At least one man arrested in the round-up was employed by Fay.

Fay, who was held in $2,000, gave his address as No. 20 Queensboro street, Back Bay, saying he lived there with friends.

He was born, he continued, at Yxelles, Belgium, son of American parents. His father is a dentist now practicing in Brussels, the Belgian capital.

IN THE FIRST DRAFT.

Fay is single. He said he registered for the first American draft on June 5, 1917, but was rejected for active service. He was put in Class 1A (special) for service as an interpreter.

United States District Attorney Thomas J. Boynton first planned to have Fay go to trial on August 1. But the date was later changed to August 14, when the four other men under arrest will have their hearings. Stiros Kalirow will come up for trial on August 21.

Stiros Kalirow was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes.

Kalirio is specifically charged with willfully, unlawfully and knowingly conspiring to issue fraudulent passports, having July 3 issued a false paper to Fatah Apoch.

Paul Asiopios, Cedric H. McGlaffin, Nicolas Dapper and Cornelius A. Baltus, arrested as other conspirators, are now out on bail.

Kalirio will be given a hearing later, and was released under bail.

Forty-eight Kurds and Turks armed with passports declaring them to be Syrians, have been stopped at Providence and New York, as they were about to leave the country, through the discovery of the Syrian welfare committee that these men cannot speak Arabic, the tongue of the Syrians.

Kalirio, who lives in Peabody, was arrested in Groveland, a suburb of Haverhill, by Department of Justice agents.

Kalirio was held in $2,000 bail for hearing August 21. The specific charge against him was that on July 3 he issued a fraudulent document to Fetah Apoch, a Turk, who sought to return to his own country in spite of the passport ban, and was detected in Providence.

Kalirio was closely questioned by Assistant District Attorney Goldberg as to the existence of organized and widespread conspiracy among the Turks out of the country under false colors.

Which Is More Vital to Boston, Cheaper Food or the Mayor's Vacation?

National, State and city officials the country over are bending every energy to co-operate in the big push to reduce the alarming cost of foodstuffs.

So all important is the question, nationally and internationally, for that matter, that Congress has put aside peace treaties, even League of Nations matters, temporarily, and concentrated on some just method to give the public relief from ever-soaring prices.

News dispatches crowd the wires from Newark, Detroit and other centres telling how the officials there are combatting price inflation through direct action.

The Mayor of Newark peddles bacon at greatly reduced costs to the citizens of that city. District attorneys in the Middle West plan effective campaigns against food profiteers. Federal attorneys, spurred on by Washington, threaten food pirates with prosecution.

Millions of dollars' worth of food supplies lie in army warehouses, waiting only for the door to swing open officially that they may grace the tables of the overburdened consumer at greatly reduced cost.

What is being done locally?

Governor Coolidge has appointed an investigating committee which does not have to report findings until late in the Fall.

Thousands of tons of food lie in the army base in South Boston, waiting to be turned over to consumers.

An appropriation of $7,500 has been promised by Mayor Peters. To use this money from the reserve fund, the Mayor's signature to an order is necessary.

The City Council, which meets today, waits for action by the Mayor. The channels of distribution are ready, as prepared by the Women's Distributing Committee.

Meanwhile, citizens in unrest and impotent, chafe over the daily gouge by food dealers.

Acting Mayor Ford announces he can take no action; that Mayor Peters only can order the $7,500 appropriation from the reserve fund.

Mayor Peters, his office announces, is yachting off the coast of Maine.

Which is more important?

That the public be afforded a chance to buy food at reduced cost?

Or,

That Mayor Peters continue his vacation?

BOSTON TO HAVE THREE MORE THEATRES

New Structures to Be Available for Public Within a Year

Boston is to have three new first-class theatres within a year. A. L. Erlanger has announced that he has completed arrangements for building two new houses in Boston, and work has already commenced upon the foundations of a new theatre for Oliver Morosco.

These three houses will bring the number of theatres in Boston devoted to legitimate drama up to an even dozen. Those existing at present are the Hollis, Colonial and Tremont, operated by the syndicate of which Erlanger was a part until this Spring, when he separated from his old partner, Klaw; the independent Selwyn house, the Park Square, the five Shubert houses—Boston Opera House, where a full season of attractions beginning with "Monte Cristo, Jr.," from the Winter Garden, is booked this year, the Shubert, Wilbur, Majestic and Plymouth.

PETERS ON YACHTING CRUISE

Two of Advisory Committee Also Awaya, as War Is Urged On Profiteers

The effort to obtain cheaper food for the public, admittedly the most pressing question of the hour, was held up today in this city by the absence of Mayor Peters and two members of the advisory committee.

The Mayor was said to be enjoying a yachting cruise, beyond the reach of a telephone, while Robert A. Woods and Corporation Counsel Alexander Whiteside of the Advisory Committee were on the Cape.

Acting Mayor Ford stated at noon that no report had been received on the advisability of the city purchasing army canned goods in case a favorable report is received he said he would immediately forward an order for the Mayor's signature calling for the appropriation of $7,500 with which to purchase one carload of canned goods.

He said he believed the advisory committee would render a favorable report.

QUESTIONNAIRE FOR DEALERS.

Wholesale and retail food dealers of Massachusetts will soon receive a questionnaire from the new State commission investigating the high cost of living, which they will be asked to fill out and return according to a statement by Brigadier-General John H. Sherburne, chairman of a conference of the commission at the State House today. The questionnaire has already been drafted.

With the conclusion of this draft" of information as to the food situation in the State, a subcommittee will be employed to go over and compile the mass of submitted data. In this way the commission hopes to obtain the desired information in a short time. Otherwise it would require weeks and weeks to get anywhere.

HIGH COSTS PROBE ORDERED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Concord, N. H., Aug. 4.—Following the example of executives of other States, Governor Bartlett has ordered an investigation of the high cost of living in this State. Instructions were given Attorney-General Young to co-operate with Federal and local authorities and as soon as possible to report on recommendations for relief. He called attention to what Governor Coolidge is doing in Massachusetts and advised wherever possible co-operation with its authorities.

ANOTHER AMERICAN WOMAN DIES A VICTIM OF MEXICAN BRUTALITY

FAMILY ABUSED AND JAILED BY CARRANZA'S MEN

Washington, Aug. 4.—One American woman dead as the result of starvation, another, her daughter, compelled to suffer all the indignities of vicious men; her son-in-law a physical wreck because of his sufferings and all-treatment—those facts constitute the latest affront against American citizens in Mexico.

The woman who died, her life and whose body, now cold, was wrapped in thick matting in a hole in the ground near Dupuis, in Chihuahua, was Mrs. W. H. Keenright, an aged resident of Washington.

Her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Charles T. Sturgis, former Washingtonians, are now in route to this city after their escape from Mexico. Their relatives incensed at the treatment accorded them by the Carranza regime, demanded that they be permitted to tell their stories to the House Rules Committee, which is considering an investigation of the Mexican situation.

STORY OF WOMAN'S DEATH.

The details of Mrs. Keenright's death and the latest experiences of the other members of her family reached the capital today. In brief, this is the story:

Mrs. Keenright set out to join Dr. Sturgis and his wife, who had been several years ago. Her health was failing and she thought the change would benefit her.

Dr. Sturgis was a dentist, who had amassed a comfortable fortune, which he invested in a large coffee plantation. He estimated his wealth at $100,000.

Instead of benefitting her health, Mrs. Keenright met death. She saw the wealth of her daughter's husband confiscated by Mexicans; she saw his plantation sacked. She saw her daughter mistreated by bandits.

The men compelled Mrs. Sturgis to dance and sing before a Mexican commander and to act as a servant for Mexican and Indian women. Finally Mrs. Keenright and her relatives were taken prisoners by a band of outlaws. The husband and wife were held for eight months. The mother died soon after she was taken a captive.

The story which Mrs. Sturgis tells follows:

STRUCK HER WITH RIFLE.

"It was on January 15, 1918, that we had our first raid. That was by Carranzistas. The soldiers were commanded by two captains—Leopoldo Garcia and Jose Casillanas. They rode up and swarmed into the house. Garcia pointed his rifle at me and forced me to search the entire house for him for revolutionaries, he said.

"Then he ordered me to climb the roof and to search it with him. I refused.

"Then an Indian to do your errands for you," I said. 'I'm the wife of an American citizen!'

"Mother was sitting rapidly. Thank God, she didn't suffer much toward the end. She was not weak on the shoulder with the butt of his rifle.

"'You'll pay for that!' I told him. 'I'm the wife of an American citizen!' Then I did tell your governments, may his name rot! It won't do any good. We're going to drive all the damned gringos out of the country before we're through with you.'

FORCED WORKERS TO QUIT.

Well, the Carranzistas left us at last. And then came the raid of July 26, 1918. That was headed by General Rafael Maya.

"Before that time we were in all kinds of difficulties. The Carranzista government had ordered all plantation employes to quit work; they were not permitted to even attempt to pay back advances on their labor.

Dr. Sturgis had over $25,000 out in cash and store goods. Many of the 125 workers wanted to come back to the plantation, but a Carranza agent kept coming around regularly, and if he found anyone at work he would threaten to hang them if they did not quit.

"On the occasion of the second raid, the Mexicans pledged the principal residence of everything of any value and threatened to shoot Dr. Sturgis, according to his wife's story. Then the bandits took the three Americans to a prison camp. They were held captives for almost eight months. It was not until February of this year that Dr. Sturgis and his wife were released.

DIED OF SLOW STARVATION.

"It was on November 13, 1918," according to Mrs. Sturgis, "that my mother died of slow starvation. She was 63 years old and in delicate health. She continued:

"Our treatment was terrible. All they would feed us were some dry tortillas without salt, and we had nothing but river water to drink. Once in a week or so we would be tossed a handful of beans.

"Mother was sitting rapidly. Thank God, she didn't suffer much toward the end. She was not weak on the shoulder with the butt of his rifle.

"'You'll pay for that!' I told him. 'I'm the wife of an American citizen!' Then I did tell your governments, may his name rot! It won't do any good. We're going to drive all the damned gringos out of the country before we're through with you.'

Mexican Bandits Free American They Kidnaped

Washington, Aug. 4.—Lawrence L. Shipley, an American citizen, who on July 9 was kidnaped by Mexican bandits near Fresnio, has been released, the State Department was advised by the American Embassy at Mexico City today. Shipley, who is a resident of Vernigton, Nev., was an employe of the Fresnillo Company.

COBBLER FINED $100 FOR SALE OF WHISKEY

Benjamin Lit, proprietor of a shoe repairing shop at No. 351 Washington street, Brighton, charged in Brighton court today with unlawfully selling liquors in his shop, was found guilty and fined $100. It is alleged that he sold a pint of whiskey to Patrolman Dooley of the Brighton station for $25, when the officer called at his place in citizen's dress. Police at the time seized a gallon and a half of whiskey in the shop. Lit paid $50 of the fine and was given a suspended sentence to pay the remainder.

EXCESS TAX ON FOOD PROFITS FAVORED

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 4—A bill designed to check the operations of food profiteers by assessing an excess profits tax on food commodities is under consideration by Senator Capper of Kansas, as a first step to the reduction of the cost of living, he announced today.

"If we can work out such a bill and make its operations surely fair, it appears to me that it holds out the greatest possibilities of reducing the high cost of living," said the Kansas Senator. "I have the matter under consideration and I may be able to draft a bill which will touch the vital spot.

"Such a campaign would curb the small profiteer as well as the big fellow. The latter will not be the only man making large profits, although I must admit that he is an adept. The small dealer who is making big profits and an excess tax upon them may render their profiteering ineffective."

PACKERS SHIFT BLAME.

There is a disposition upon the large packers to shift blame for high living costs to the retailers, a letter received by Senator Capper today from an official of Armour & Co. indicated. Senator Capper previously had pointed out that while the price of cattle was going down, the price of hides was going up.

The Armour official declared the price of beef had been "greatly lowered" and that the difference had been made up by increasing the price of hides. He advised Senator Capper to investigate the activities of retail shoe dealers and handlers of other by-products, suggesting that an inquiry would show huge profits by the retailers.

President Wilson returned early today from his week-end cruise aboard the Mayflower and devoted a great part of the day to the high cost of living problem.

MAY ADDRESS CONGRESS.

Whether he will address Congress on the cost of living and railroad problem growing out of the evident unwillingness of the railroad men to wait a decision by a commission on the wage question, will depend to a large extent upon the developments at the Cabinet meeting tomorrow, the sub-committee on the food situation, composed of Walker D. Hines, C. J. Ledingwell and W. A. Culver, will lay before the entire presidential committee certain proposals which will be submitted at tomorrow's meeting of the Cabinet.

Representatives of the large packing houses were to be called before a Senate committee today to tell what they know of the high prices. The committee, which is investigating living costs in the District of Columbia, has summoned packer representatives to learn whether there is any combination fixing prices. Though the investigation deals only with the situation within the district there is no indication that its scope will be broadened.

WAR FOOD MAY HELP.

Government officials are eagerly awaiting the results of the sale of the surplus food supplies of the War Department to the public through municipalities to see whether or not their disposition will in any way affect the market.

The foodstuffs are listed, in many instances, at less than one-half the charge in the commercial market, and so large is the quantity held by the department that it is deemed certain the sale will lower present prices materially.

The ultimate test, though, will come when the War Department on August 15 inaugurates in conjunction with the Post Office Department the parcel post sale of food products direct to the home.

Too much stress cannot be placed on the sale of the War Department's food supplies. If their appearance in the open market fails to break the present prices, officials will be convinced that the palpable profiteering exists, and the Department of Justice will be called upon to act.

Despite the many charges of profiteering, and the fact that prices charged for some commodities are so extremely high as to be ridiculous were it not for the tragedy of the situation, the Department of Justice has taken no steps to put existing legislation in force.

The Federal Trade Commission's report on the packers, for example, has been public property for months, but the government has not acted on it.

Continuation of the wage hearings of railroad employes, coupled with the impending strike of the railroad shopmen, will keep the cost of living subject before the public in material form, even though action may not be forthcoming from the executive heads of the government for some days. While the government has delayed, however, State officials throughout the country have been busy, and their actions will tend to hasten Federal officials in formulating a program.

NAME CONCILIATORS IN CONNECTICUT STRIKES

Washington, Aug. 4—Conciliator L. R. Thomas was today assigned by the Labor Department to effect the settlement of a controversy between the employes and the Eastern Machine Screw Company of New Haven, Ct. Charles J. would be secured showing that the talk of a shortage was fostered by dealers.

Brigadier-General Sherburne Mayor Charles H. Adams and John D. Willard of Amherst, the members of the commission, went into executive session at the State House early today.

Tomorrow a public hearing in Lawrence is regarded as a most important one. It will mark the beginning of the investigation of ice prices. Lawrence dealers are charging a cent a pound, $1 a hundred for ice. This is the highest price in the State, and the investigators believe that they will secure enough data through the hearing to furnish them with statistics for the entire Commonwealth.

The ice investigation will be followed at once by an inquiry into the fuel situation and the price of coal in Massachusetts. Other commodities will be taken up in the near future, and public hearings will be held at the State House.

TO PROBE SUGAR SITUATION.

Before the new commission began its star chamber session today, Dr. Adams stated that the commission had received no news of significance from an official of Armour & Co. indicated. Senator Capper previously had pointed out that while the price of cattle was going down, the price of hides was going up.

The Armour official declared the price of beef had been "greatly lowered" and that the difference had been made up by increasing the price of hides. He advised Senator Capper to investigate the activities of retail shoe dealers and handlers of other by-products, suggesting that an inquiry would show huge profits by the retailers.

He also called attention to a tendency of small dealers to hoard powdered sugar at 13 cents a pound on purchasers, saying that many dealers were doing this, pretending they have no granulated sugar. Purchasers then seek the stores where granulated sugar is to be had, he said.

He stated that the investigation into the price of ice, fuel and foods will be the most drastic and far-reaching one.

DEMAND FOR ARMY STORES.

Today a canvass was being made of city employes to see if there is sufficient demand for army canned goods to establish a depot for their sale at City Hall. Mrs. Margaret W. Jacobs of the Woman's Public Service Committee, of which Miss Mary A. Barr is chairman, stated that she would issue a set of instructions on cooking army canned bacon, before the canned goods is placed on sale, as Health Commissioner Woodward has warned that certain brands of the canned bacon require special care.

A special meeting of the organization has been called for tomorrow to take action in regard to the sale of army canned goods, and to conduct a canvass of the entire city to ascertain the demand for same. Many Charlestown and South Boston have pledged themselves to take a carload each, and Dorchester, according to reports from that district, may take three carloads.

Mrs. Jacobs said that all over the city, and particularly in the outlying sections, there is a demand for army canned goods, despite the fact that Commissioner Woodward's inspectors have reported the demand to be slight.

Gronna Denies Fixed Price of Wheat Is Cause of High Costs

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 4.—"We hope to devise some way to reduce the high cost of living and help the American people get food at lower prices," Senator Gronna of North Dakota, chairman of the State Agriculture Committee, stated in the Senate this afternoon in announcing that the committee would hold a special meeting tomorrow to consider existing economic conditions in this country.

Gronna denied that the government fixed price of wheat had had anything to do with the high cost of living, after Senator Pittman of Nevada read an editorial from a New York newspaper to the effect that it had.

"Wheat is the cheapest article of food available for the American people today," Gronna declared.

Denying that the price of wheat was inflated, Senator Gronna said that wheat was selling at terminal markets at $3 a bushel.

"Instead of having a crop of 1,250,000,000 bushels in this harvest, we will have about 850,000,000 bushels," he said, "and there will be a shortage of wheat throughout the world. We do not know what is the present proportion between the cost of wheat and flour, but during the Hoover administration the gross profits in flour were enormous."

Banana Cargo Due Wednesday, First Since Strike

The first bananas for this port since the fruit handlers' strike several weeks ago are due here Wednesday from Jamaica on the Bosua of the United Fruit Company's fleet.

The day the strike was declared a banana vessel was nearly unloaded as the noon hour approached. The fruit handlers demanded that they be allowed to complete the unloading through the noon hour intermission pay. The company refused, telling the men to take the noon hour and resume work at 1 o'clock. The men did not return at that hour. The unloading was completed by clerks and other company employes.

No more of the company's banana vessels were routed to this port until the settlement of the strike last week.

NEW BOMB IS LOCATED IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Aug. 4—Another bomb similar to the one used for the destruction of the home of Oscar Lawler, former United States Attorney, was discovered today in a residence less than a block from the Lawler home, according to the police.

A squad of detectives left Central Station to take charge of the bomb, which failed to explode because of defective mechanism.

While the condition of Mr. and Mrs. Lawler was reported slightly improved the police had no clues today of the person who placed two nitroglycerine bombs under their home early Sunday morning, destroying the residence.

Mr. Lawler was burned about the head and face, the breast, back, arms and legs. His head also was injured when he leaped to the ground from a second story window.

Mrs. Lawler was burned about the face, breast, arms and legs. She suffered a broken collar bone when her husband dropped on to an awning from the window from which he later leaped. Mrs. Lawler rolled from the awning and dropped to the lawn.

The police today advanced several theories for the crime, as follows:

1—That it was back to the McNamara dynamite cases. Lawler was special counsel for District Attorney Fredericks during the trial of McNamara and later was special prosecutor for the government in the Indianapolis cases, and is credited with obtaining the confession of one of the conspirators.

2—That it is a part of the terrorist plot of the I. W. W.

3—That some desperate criminal among those whom Lawler sent to prison while he was National States attorney recently was released and came back with a long smouldering rage to seek revenge.

4—That some persons concerned in bitter litigation in which Lawler figures as attorney were responsible.

The explosion occurred at 5:30 o'clock in the morning. Lawler was endeavoring to rescue his son, Patsy, when he was overcome. Neighbors effected the rescue of the child and nurse. The Lawlers' other children were visiting friends in another city.

of the Railroad Administration is strong, and if the demands are not granted, and quickly granted, judging from the temper of the employes, they are likely to follow the lead of the shopmen.

"It costs the railroad clerk with a family of five as much to live as it does a locomotive engineer with his family. Our members are in the same trap economically as the other railroad workers and we join with them in demanding that unless something be done materially to reduce the cost of living our wages must be raised to give us immediate relief."

Union Leaders Say 150,000 Shopmen of Railroads Are Out

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 4—Union officials declared here today that the strike of railroad shopmen which began last Friday was spreading rapidly throughout the United States. The union leaders assert 150,000 men have responded to the strike order and that others will walk out during the day.

Regional officials of the Railroad Administration admitted frankly today that the situation is becoming serious and that a depreciation of service is certain within the next few days unless men return to work.

Locomotives and other rolling stock, it is declared, are being forced out of commission and cannot be repaired because of the absence of men from the shops. The entire railway traffic of the nation, it is declared, is threatened.

L. W. Hawver, president of the Chicago joint council of the railroad shop craftsmen, declared today the men are going to stay out until their demands are met. A call for a referendum vote has been issued, Hawver said, but this is not returnable until August 24, and before that time the shop systems of the country will be tied up.

Perpetual Federal Railway Ownership Sought By Plumb Plan

Washington, Aug. 4.—Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, announced that Edward Keating, former member of Congress from Colorado, would begin work today as business manager of the Plumb plan, which provides perpetual government ownership and operation of the railroad systems of the country.

The Plumb plan is backed by the four great railroad brotherhoods, which have a membership of 2,000,000 employes.

Mr. Stone said:

"From all parts of the country we have received reports endorsing the movement. You could be surprised at the amount of interest aroused, and especially the classes of people interested in the success of the plan. We have heard not only from railroad workers, but from men and women in practically every walk of life."

Mr. Stone also declared the same interest was manifest in the ranks of the railroad brotherhoods in bringing the attention of the President to the high cost of living.

Chief in importance in the railroad situation was Mr. Stone's announcement of the selection of Mr. Keating as business manager of the Plumb plan. This means that the railroad men, realizing the risk on their hands, have an organization ready to carry out their plans, and have at the head of that organization a man not only high in the councils of labor, but also one versed in the ways of Congress and the methods to pursue in a legislative fight.

as weapons. One striker was mortally wounded in the fighting.

The damage in Liverpool alone was estimated at $1,250,000, not counting the sabotage in the suburbs. One of the rioters who was shot in a clash with soldiers died during the morning.

Most of the rioting and looting was done by young Hooligans who broke into stores and smashed the fixtures while crowds looked on.

In the panic many were knocked down and trampled. Many Australian soldiers and bluejackets joined the police and helped them to subdue the mobs. Numerous individual battles between the soldiers and hoodlums took place.

Liverpool literally became "a city of dreadful night" after darkness fell. The hardening effect was a tumult of noise. It was described in one newspaper dispatch as "the most distressful night ever passed in a civilized city."

State of Anarchy at Liverpool; Authorities Ask for Reinforcements

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 4. — A state of anarchy exists at Liverpool and the municipal authorities have asked for reinforcements of troops, said a dispatch to the Daily Express, quoting Percy Corkhill, secretary to the lord mayor of Liverpool.

Reports in the Daily News said the outbreak of rioting and pillaging at Liverpool was the first display of anarchy seen in England for years. The Daily News correspondent gives a graphic picture of the scene at Liverpool with the streets littered with wreckage, women drunk on liquor stolen from pillaged shops and men with their clothing bulging with loot.

LIQUOR LOSES HOLD ON NORTH ADAMS MEN

North Adams, Aug. 4.—Passage of the anti-time prohibition law by Congress and enforcement by the local police force has "worked miracles among former drinking men in this city," declared Ensign James M. Anderson, who is in charge of the local branch of the Salvation Army.

Ensign Anderson declares that in just one month the number of men stopping for assistance at the army barracks has dwindled to almost nothing and that former habitues of the place are now better dressed, well fed and have money in their pocket.

Cape Cod train, girl and a man

One of those boiling hot days recently a girl was riding on the Cape train to Hyannis. Beside her was a man about 50 years of age.

The man suggested that perhaps she was in business somewhere. Her reply was, "Yes, the workers at Filene's." Enthusiasm spread itself handsomely over the man's face, and from his pocket he took his business card, and the name was that of a celebrated bacteriologist from one of our biggest hospitals.

"Filene's!" he said. "I am enthusiastic over their Basement. See these shoes! Filene's Basement, 66c! See this Palm Beach suit—I got four of them in Filene's Basement at $2.50 each!"

He went on to say that he owns his own motor car and similar luxuries, but that he finds so much pleasure and satisfaction in walking through Filene's Basement, picking up many of his clothes at price for which our Basement is famous, that he doesn't miss a week.

NOTE—Some day soon we will tell you the rest of this story—something about the girl.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

IT IS NOW UP TO CONGRESS TO RESPOND TO GREAT BONUS PETITION

NATION AWAITS LEGISLATION TO AID SERVICE MEN

The nation's request that more liberal recognition be given to the men returned victoriously from the war, as expressed through 6,100,000 signers of petitions gathered by the Hearst newspapers, now lies before Congress for approval.

This mighty appeal asks that the government grant to each soldier, sailor and marine who served in the war a bonus equivalent to six months' pay at the time of his discharge in addition to the gratuity already authorized by Congress.

William Randolph Hearst, in a signed editorial in the New York American on Christmas day, 1918, started the movement which gained such momentum over the entire United States that 6,100,000 citizens signed the petitions in the Hearst newspapers.

Mr. Hearst offered the six months' pay suggestion, his papers provided the opportunity for the people of the United States to record their wishes on the subject, and the result is perhaps the most overwhelming documentary crystallization of "the voice of the people" ever presented to the Congress for approval.

For seven months without cessation, the Hearst newspapers from coast to coast waged a campaign in behalf of the returned soldiers. Column after column of editorials, cartoons, pictures and news stories were carried to bring home to the people of the land the necessity of doing more for the soldiers than welcome them home with cheers and parades.

LEGISLATURES ENDORSE MOVEMENT.

Many State Legislatures adopted resolutions indorsing the movement and asking that Congress put through the necessary measures to accomplish its end.

City assemblies, labor organizations, civic associations and organizations of every type joined in the campaign. Volunteer workers clipped the petition to the secretaries of war and navy appearing in the Hearst papers and went out to get signers.

It was not many weeks before this intensive national campaign grew to gigantic proportions, and the signatures to the petitions began pouring in, rolling the final count to the amazing figure of more than six millions.

The mighty document was formally received by both branches of the Congress last Friday, so that the great national campaign for fair play to the men who made possible the glorious victory in the world war is at the stage where only congressional approval is required to crown it with victory.

Immediately after George A. Sanderson, Secretary of the Senate, received the petitions on the Capitol steps, Senator Calder of New York sponsored it in the Senate chamber. It was referred to the Military Affairs Committee without objection.

The same procedure took place in the house, where Representative La Guardia, himself a hero of the great war, sponsored the petition.

But long before this, when the mammoth petition was in the making, many members of both the House and Senate declared themselves heartily in its favor.

SUPPORTED BY MANY GOVERNORS.

It already had won the hearty support likewise of the governors of practically every State in the union, the mayors of the important cities and towns, judges and high officials of the nation, States and cities.

Soon after the first "peace thanksgiving" following the world war, and on the first peace Christmas day, Mr. Hearst made the first appeal for six months' pay for the returning heroes.

He pointed out their magnificent achievements in the war; how they had made the victory possible and how many were returning "to find their places still open to them, some to find their positions filled, and some to find it necessary to hunt for work for months before they can secure the steady and satisfactory employment from which they were taken to serve their native land."

Mr. Hearst then put this question:

"Is it not merely the most simple justice, the most meagre generosity, for the government to pay those returned soldiers their military wages for a period of six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can settle back into the daily occupation from which they were hurried to fight for their country and their country's cause?"

From all sections of the country came the mighty chorus of ayes!

It is up to Congress to answer this question.

CARRYING BONUS PETITION TO CONGRESS

Six million one hundred thousand readers of the Hearst newspapers signed petition of William Randolph Hearst asking Congress to grant a bonus of six months' pay to every man who risked his life to make America victorious in the late war. The picture shows a few thousands of the petitions being delivered at the Capitol. The appeal was laid before both branches of the House by Senator William M. Calder of New York and Representative F. LaGuardia of New York city.

CRIPPLED WAR OFFICER FLAYS CONGRESS

Charges Bad Faith in Reducing Allowance in Vocational Training Program

George T. Bailey of No. 335 Huntington avenue, Suite 3, a crippled officer, has written to the Boston American a vigorous letter of protest in which he charges Congress with breach of faith in having disallowed certain officers who have taken up vocational training.

He bases his charge upon the point that Congress incorporated into the Civil Sundries bill a provision to reduce the allowance of such officers to that of enlisted men after they had been assured of allowance equal to their base pay at point of discharge. His letter reads in part:

Editor Boston American:

In the theory that the "unsinkable" press does not include every paper in Boston and that among them will be found not at least, which stands for equity and justice—that one I am seeking as a possible source of valuable information, advice and helpful publicity, and as a potential champion of a few men who have had anything but a square deal.

A GOVERNMENT PROMISE.

I note with interest several items in the Transcript, setting forth the wonderful work of the Federal Board for Vocational Training, in behalf of the crippled soldiers now in training. So far, so good. Of the Federal board as policies and personnel I have no criticism to offer, but permit me to state at this point that the writer is himself a discharged officer undergoing vocational training, that he is deformed and crippled for life as a result of "misdirected energy" of overseas service, and being but one of comparatively small number of men who are in the same "boat," I am desperately seeking constructive advice and if possible, influence which may bring about remedial legislation.

You are doubtless aware that the government fully and freely promised without reservation that to each and every disabled officer undergoing vocational training during the period of such training, he would be made an allowance equal to his base pay at date of discharge.

This, to the common knowledge, let us at this point disregard any question of discrimination in favor of officers as against the enlisted man, and view the fact that such a promise was definitely made. It was also as definitely informed that under the civil sundries bill, "effective as of July 31, 1919," officers of the same allowance as enlisted men."

As I suppose there are many disabled officers in precisely the same circumstances, let us suppose that my case is typical, believing fully in the good faith of Uncle Sam, in whose service I had unwillingly risked my life, had actually offered my physique, trusting implicitly in this promise which was so frequently and widely in various propaganda circulated about the reconstruction hospital, I had carefully weighed the proposition and calculated that I could bring my wife and little girl to Boston, make my home here for the period of training, plunge in and make good with the opportunity for college training offered, and that by the exercise of the greatest economy I could manage, at least for a year or two, to live on the allowance granted, my base pay as a lieutenant.

SAVINGS USED UP.

Now then, Mr. Editor, I am involved in the thing, too deeply for retrenchment, at first, I might have rejected the opportunity, and with my little savings, with the help of influential friends in Washington, I could have secured employment as soon as discharged from hospital; to fact, a young friend who owns a prosperous business in automobile accessories, did make me a most attractive offer, but I regretfully turned down in order to get the benefit of a college training.

Regarding it as a wise investment, I followed the instructions of the Federal Board, and reported for duty at Cambridge until directed to report for training.

I remained in this state of enforced idleness for three weeks, without income, then brought my little family here from Cambridge, after much effort, worry and expense, finally purchased the furnishings of a tiny suite, where children were "growed," contemplating a stay of two years at least. Living expenses while this consultation with the authorities decided that no negroes would be allowed to resume work in the yards until danger of further rioting had entirely passed.

Demonstrations by whites against negroes and by negroes against whites are still frequent in the city and several attacks were reported to the police. The presence of troops, special deputies and the police, however, has prevented any serious outbreaks.

Samuel R. Johnson, a negro, a soldier arrest today, charged with the murder of Herger Oliman white, one of the victims of last week's rioting. Johnson is said to have confessed.

A special grand jury to investigate the riots was empaneled today and the State attorney's office began presenting evidence gathered against individuals. Indictments against scores of rioters on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to murder will, it is expected, be returned.

Coroner Peter Hoffman today officially fixed the number killed in last week's riots at thirty-three—twenty negro civilians, twelve white civilians and one policeman. The list of injured cared for in hospitals is announced as 508, including 177 blacks and 113 whites and sixteen on which no report of color was made.

Bail Raised to $5,000.

Carl Peterson, believed to be the son of a wealthy Chicago resident, appeared in court today on the charge of stealing an automobile. His bail was raised to $5,000 for a continuance until August 11.

American Ship Flies Irish Flag in Queenstown

London, Aug. 4—The first part of organization was thrown into a state of excitement by the arrival of the American steamship Adriatic flying the Irish flag. It was the first vessel ever to carry the emblem of the Irish republic in the high seas.

The Adriatic was towed into the harbor by British naval tugs. Word of her carrying the Irish republican flag spread through the town like wildfire and thousands gathered at the pier from which viewed the American vessel.

[illegible] the goods for sale [illegible] and, if necessary, work on the [illegible] to equipment the allowance while I finish my college course. Fine. Elegant. We all do it. And the same thing now. But do not know the government considers this a breach of faith, as officers may be extremely wealthy. They know well enough in Washington that no man can live decently for one month on $175 per month; yet they say to a man who is more than willing to go to work, "Be a man and make up the deficit in some way." If you add to your salary you lose the allowance, in brief. "We know you cannot live on the allowance but you must, add to it and it shall be accordingly reduced. And the entire amount saved to the government by this bit of petty larceny would not total a set of turbines to a good-sized cruiser.

Yours in desperation,

George T. Bailey.

It is the unanimous knowledge, let us at this point disregard any question of discrimination in favor of officers as against the enlisted man, and view the fact that such a promise was definitely made. It was also as definitely informed that under the civil sundries bill, "effective as of July 31, 1919," officers of the same allowance as enlisted men."

Scheippa and Klein Again Deny Pickpocket Charge in Court

Two alleged pickpockets were arraigned in the municipal court for the day for Patrolmen Power, Lee and Davidson. The men have been arrested three times in the last twenty-four hours on the same charge. They are Joseph Scheippa and Max Klein.

On Saturday they were arrested for attempting to pick the pocket of Christopher Mooney, 23, of Revere, at the Scollay square station. Scheippa evaded the Matron at the station house, escaped to the street and was captured on the other side. Bail was fixed at $2,000.

Yesterday they were arraigned at the Northampton street court for attempting larceny from a person, the complaint coming from a Revere man. Again they pleaded not guilty.

Just before arraigning for arraignment in court bail bonds were arranged for and the men were released in the corridor of the municipal building. They were seen conferring for several minutes with a Scollay square bondsman.

Before the court they pleaded not guilty to all charges and were held in $4,000 each for the superior court. Their appealed and each furnished $1,000 bonds. They gave their names as Tino Scheippa and Ferdinando Catteri, both of Haverhill.

They were arrested by Patrolman Carlton after a chase following an unsuccessful attempt to steal a roll of money from Nicholas Gardenia, on the South station "L" structure. Gardenia caught one of the men with a hand on his pocket. A tussle followed. When Gardenia had the best of them both men fled, with the officer in pursuit.

QUAKE RECORDED ON HARVARD SEISMOGRAPH

Soldier's Baby Needs a Carriage! Who Can Spare One?

Who will give a baby carriage to save the life of a soldier's war baby?

The father served in the Ordnance Department and is now in a hospital. He will be there several months more. The mother and their fifteen-months-old baby live in a three-room attic tenement in Dorchester. The mother is sick from worry over her husband and child both.

Without a baby carriage the mother is unable to give the baby proper airing. Recently the case was called to the attention of Herbert W. Burr of No. 161 Devonshire street, Boston, secretary of the Ward 20 War Service Association.

He found the tenement was turned off for non-payment. He paid the bill and had the gas turned on. The Red Cross has likewise been helping the mother.

Right now a baby carriage that is not working and that you can spare for this war baby. If so, notify Mr. Burr. He will see that it is delivered to this soldier's wife. Maybe one of your friends has such a carriage.

Baby clothes, too.

COUNT DI CAVOUR TO MAKE BOSTON FIRST PORT

Plans have been formulated for the reception of the officers and crew of the Italian battleship Count di Cavour, which is expected to visit the port of Boston some time between August 5 and August 10.

At noon today the committee appointed by Mayor Peters met in the City Council Chamber and made the plans in detail. Charles A. Shaw, who heads the committee, presided.

It was decided that Boston would be the first visiting port of the battleship, that two others would probably come with it, and that the visit is to show the established friendly relations between the Italian and American people.

The exact date of arrival was not yet known to him, but he will be informed through the Navy Department.

Upon receipt of this information the committee will go down the harbor aboard the Monitor and pay a visit to the commanding officer. It is also believed that the navy will send a couple of submarine chasers along with the Monitor. In turn, the commanding officer will visit the Charlestown Navy and and pay his respects to the commandant and his staff.

This will be followed by visits to the office of the Governor and the Mayor, who in turn will make visits to the officers of the battleship. And if the whole plans are carried out there will be a meeting on the Common. Luncheon will be served at the Copley Plaza.

A representative of the Italian embassy was present and stated that the commanding officer and crew of the ship would like to give a public reception, providing this is advisable, in connection with a ball.

It has not had a representative in county affairs for twenty years.

Kemps petition for the office will be Clark F. Harding, who is filling the office of treasurer temporarily through the death of the late county treasurer.

AIDED MRS. EDDY POPULARIZE HER CREED

Dr. George Tomkins Tells How Mrs. Eddy Selected Christian Science Workers

Rev. George Tomkins, D. D., who has been conducting Christian Science meetings before Judge Dodge, Probate Court, having been appointed by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, to conduct religious services on the Christian Science Church estate, while visiting the employees and keeping up good relations generally with enemies. No greater task could be set before a man, for there were lost minutes in choosing for the purpose, and the appointment has nevertheless been ratified by the so-called authority of a tomb. Dr. Tomkins has proved the certainly followed divine precedent in selecting those he could best use.

DRAFTED TOMKINS.

For instance, the choice of the present pastor settled July 1, 1898, from which one remembers with the Mother Church, Dr. Tomkins, then First Reader, sent for me to come to Boston to see what Mrs. Eddy had requested him to take up under his wing and mould. I was on the platform at Tremont Temple the next day. She wanted to speak with herself, Dr. Tomkins and others at the table. I was there and spoke as she desired. After the meeting she took me into the house for an interview, by which she said she would like me to come to her room and talk over what Sunrogen and his wife, with whom she had learned that I had actively been associated in Lynn.

SUGGESTED PUBLICITY.

"Later she wrote me at New York asking if I would advise her as to the best means to popularize Christian Science. I replied suggesting that she favor me with an interview. She telegraphed me to come and I was at Pleasant View the next day. Mrs. Eddy at once asked my proposition. I drew for attention to my own magazine—The Truth—which I began to issue in London the very month April, 1898, also to begin to issue the Christian Science Journal in Boston. I advised a weekly as a means for drawing public interest from herself to the field as soon as possible, a daily paper with at least a column, if not wholly devoted entirely to Christian Science arguing from the plan of a London Sunday paper, which has a magnificent printed in pica type, and quite distinguished from its general small type—which was inserted in a mail advertisement.

ENGAGED LECTURERS.

"I urged our leaders to select lecturers as soon as possible to set forth her views and to see that she would consider the plan with the result that in the month of January following Mrs. Eddy issued an election as first member and lecturer, and Messrs. Norman McKenzie and Tomkins as my co-lecturers. The two appointed both, like myself, Pentecostal experience. Remain such to this day.

"At a meeting of the select number summoned by Mrs. Eddy to come from a communing service at Concord one Sunday, she, on her own initiative asked that a first reader retire in my favor. A unanimous vote, other say would have been greater consternation, the aged church mother was the result.

While the Mother pleased and arrangements were made accordingly, the good offices of the secretary were solicited, and so succeeded in effecting the change.

LIMITED READERS' TENURE.

Mrs. Eddy never again allowed herself to be asked to a readers proprietorship consideration. She applied our by-law limiting him to three years.

At the request of Mrs. Eddy Dr. Tomkins went to Montreal and demonstrated the work of Judge Christian Science receiving a letter from Mrs. Eddy commending him for his work there.

"Never break faith with the public," Never lower the church's religion, but show the practical excellence of Christian science, and "Love never fails," were the stand and standing, were favorite statements of Mrs. Eddy, Dr. Tomkins says.

500 ON CHINESE PICNIC; "JAZZ" FOR DANCING

Boston Merchants in Oriental Togs Have Outing in New Hampshire

Merrimacport, N. H., Aug. 4.—Zee-ee-ee Zan-aa-a-a!

Five hundred Chinese, all dressed in the native costume of the Flowery Kingdom, were present at the picnic given by the Chinese merchants of Boston at Bradley Park, this place, today.

Impressive was Ko Lee Sue, the Chinese consul at Boston. He drew a good selection of native music from his instrument.

There were many white women in the throng, wives of Chinese merchants. There were also a few American men. What became the undoubtedly unusual happening for Americans was for the younger members of the party. They recognized Miss Flora Belle Ferguson and found how American girls dance.

Commissioner Fox Walk, Mayor of the High Chinatown, and chairman of the committee of arrangements, was present in all day and evening. Other white guests were Mayor Hall of Newburyport and Mayor Hall of Amesbury.

The picnic is an all day and evening affair. Many sight seeing trips will be a feature of the day, and the Americans find but unfeignedly interested in the sports and games with the Chinese show.

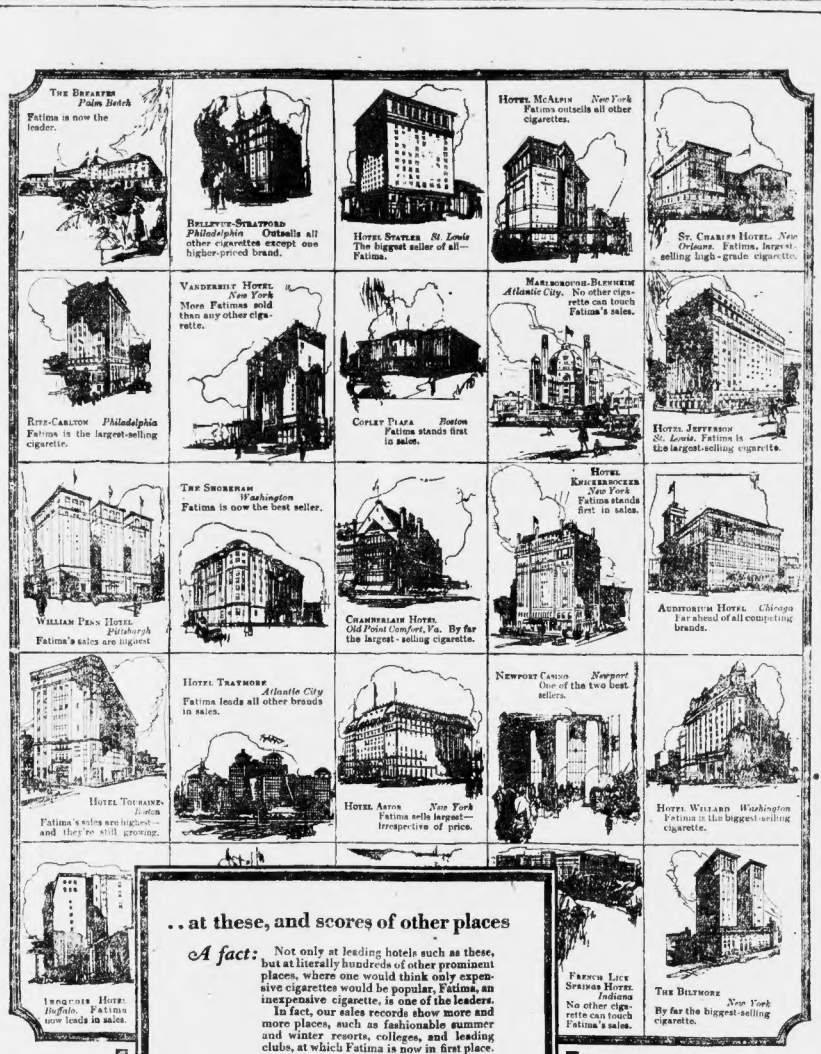
THE STORE OF PROGRESS



..at these, and scores of other places

A fact: Not only at leading hotels such as these, but at literally hundreds of other prominent places, where one would think only expensive cigarettes would be popular, Fatima, an inexpensive cigarette, is one of the leaders.

In fact, our sales records show more and more places, such as fashionable summer and winter resorts, colleges, and leading clubs, at which Fatima is now in first place.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

"Just enough Turkish"

Hotel statistics such as these are, of course, rather conclusive, since they show the smoking preference of so many men, whether traveling or at home.

These men can afford any cigarette they like. Hence the fact that at so many of these prominent places Fatima now outsells all expensive straight Turkish cigarettes is very significant.

It proves unmistakably that these smokers find something in Fatima's famous "just-enough-Turkish" blend* that other cigarettes (even the more expensive ones) do not give them. They like Fatima; and more than that, they find that Fatima treats them right—gives them the option of smoking at will, without worry about "when" or "how many".

* Fatima contains more Turkish than any other Turkish blend.

K. OF C. GATHERS FOR BIG MEET IN BUFFALO

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Over three hundred delegates representing 600,000 members of the Knights of Columbus in the United States, Canada, Newfoundland, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, the Canal Zone and the Philippines are due in Buffalo by tonight to attend the thirty-seventh annual convention, called the Peace Convention, which opens Tuesday. Chaplain Father Peter E. Dietz, of Philadelphia, will preside.

BIG SCHOOL PROGRAM.

Having aided with distinguished success the cause of the United States in the war, both in this country and abroad, the organization is now going at full speed putting into operation a nation-wide educational program—an immense chain of supplementary schools.

The problems, plan and operation of the educational scheme has been outlined here in the form of a committee of noted educators and activities in America. Supreme Knight of the K. of C., in detail regarding its success has been overlooked.

MILLION MEMBERS SOON.

The report of William J. McGinley, gone on secretary of the organization, will be one of the most interesting documents to be laid before the convention.

Some of the most salient points are: That the organization will, at the present rate of growth, have reached a million members by the first of the year 1920; that the new membership is drawn from the army and navy, despite the fact that during the months of activities with the rooms and sailors' clubs of the K. of C. in this country there was a slight rush against so doing to promulgate the merits and benefits of their organization.

The business according to Secretary McGinley, are in an unusually satisfactory condition, the present assessment being the lowest special war fund total ever in the order.

The board of directors have received requests from Europe and South American nations for the extension of the Knights of Columbus to those countries. Ireland, Scotland and France are the European nations applying, and Chile, Argentina and Peru the South American countries.

PRINCE IS CAPTIVATED BY YANKEE CHORUS BEAUTY

Rosie Quinn, whose charm as a chorus leader completely won the heart of Prince Aage of Denmark on his recent visit to New York. "She was so dainty," said the royal visitor on his arrival in London on his way home.

London, Aug. 4.—An American chorus beauty, Rosie Quinn of the Century Grove in New York city, captivated Prince Aage of Denmark, who has just arrived here on the Aquitania, en route to his Danish home, after his burdensome tour of America.

Of Rosie and her charms the Prince said:

"I danced there in Forty-second street, New York city, where the floor goes around—Murray's—did you ever see a daintier leading chorus girl than Rosie Quinn at Century Grove?"

Rosie Quinn seemed much on His Highness' mind, from an aesthetic viewpoint. He mentioned her several times.

The prince demanded to know "why in hell" the Yankees restricted liberty by passing a prohibition law.

He declared he saw a Senator "tight" at a Washington dinner. His condemnation of prohibition in America he expressed thus:

"Your soldiers fought beautifully because they are freemen. In a country producing men like yours, why in hell are you restricting liberty by passing prohibitions laws? You are simply penalizing 95 per cent. of good people for 5 per cent. of bad people—that's what puzzles me."

"Now Europe will be full of drunken Americans. The English are the hardest and steadiest drinkers I ever saw, but they are quiet drinkers. When an American gets drunk you can hear him all over the place."

LOOK FOR MEN EAGER FOR HIGH LIFE

London, Aug. 4.—Bound for New York, according to positive announcements in many quarters in this city, three seaplanes left here today with London and Paris as their objective points. Major Herbert Mace Trenchard Pierce, the other prominent and dynamic person who read the land forces towards New York, Brooklyn while the destination of the machines proceeded on sea lanes to Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Boston.

Every young man in New London will have a chance to make a flight with one of the U. S. Navy aviators, and during that month he is induced, enough these hopless days. Not that they'll get them to trade, but that they get three solid a day, good place to sleep and full pay."

Lieutenant Burke piloted one of the machines, Ensign A. Mc. Price, Ensign Grunner and Gunner Shields the third. They will fly over New London on Saturday, reaching Norwich and then proceed up the Connecticut River to Middletown, Thursday, Friday with them at Hartford, and Saturday and Sunday at Springfield.

LIFE AN IDEAL ONE.

Having reached shore after making a flight from Swampscott to Chatham in plane No. 2238, during which he actually wrote while flying over Massachusetts Bay between Plymouth and Chatham, the first newspaper story ever written in a flying machine, an American reporter declared with enthusiasm that the life of a "winged gob" is an ideal one.

But the reporter's theory of flying began with: "First find the submarine," for he had spent four days in pursuit on train and automobile before he caught up to the seaplane squadron.

He got them at last at Fisherman's Beach, Swampscott, where they were preparing for the flight back to Washington. The naval men chuckled at pounding the fact that the slogan "quit the army and get in the navy" is the "Navy's naval air service." "The sky isn't the limit for naval air service," said one, "if you're going to be in high-flier, do it in a seaplane," were good common sense.

The American's ship was assigned to the forecastle of Ensign Price's plane, the bow of which is distinguished by a catfish rampant. And by way of traveling companions he was given two homing pigeons.

BOTH EYES KEPT BUSY.

The forecastles of Uncle Sam's flying boats are very commodious cabins, and squatted on his cushioned seat the reporter was able to write at ease and keep one eye on the sky, the other on his hand, and the other on the altitude gauge.

The Flying Codfish, bearing the American party, took off first and circled Swampscott Harbor at a height of 1,000 feet, then headed toward Massachusetts Bay at exactly 3:10.

Standing up in the forecastle, the American man looked for Boston. But Boston, he learned later, had been left far behind, before he got around to locating it. He did catch sight of the strange shore off to starboard, but as the houses looked like specks he instantly knew it couldn't be Boston. Neither could he sight the other planes. The altitude gauge then read 2,000 feet, but it was higher that, the other planes were flying almost directly beneath the Flying Codfish.

Giving up the job of locating the position of the planes he reported and went down and began to write. There was a high wind blowing and the plane was barking it at the rate of eighty miles an hour, but inside the forecastle all was calm. With his ears beneath the flaps of a helmet and wrapped from Chief Mechanics Mate Donnelly, who sat amidships beside Ensign Pride, the cockpit didn't seem loud.

STORY BLOWN AWAY.

About twenty minutes elapsed, at intervals of which the reporter tried in vain to identify land seen sailed away, and then Provincetown came into view. The plane cut across the Cape at Wellfleet and aimed straight for the naval station. Over the station Ensign Pride made a circle, while the other two planes landed.

Then suddenly the engine stopped, the nose of the plane pointed straight down, plunging the American party at an angle with the horizon and the plane shot down. About the same time the reporter's story went down of it at headway scrambled to the wind and the pencil was blown from his hand. The plane dropped from 2,000 feet to within two feet of the water.

Then the engine started again and the plane sailed back to an altitude of 1,000 feet, circling over the air station. Then once again down to the forecastle and with the reporter hanging on for dear life the plane hit the water. He landed at exactly 4:00.

Stop Sunday Dances 1400 Feet in Air as Too Noisy

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 4.—The aviation meet in this city, which is to be held on Saturday, August 9, will be the first in New England, which will not have Sunday night public dances. Owing to the noise of the machines, which is a nuisance in this town, it has been decided that the dance hall being so high in the air no law interferes, but those who attended Sunday night dances for the past three years say that the goose that laid the golden egg on just Sunday nights was the night of the residents."

The committee was selected that the dances will be held on Saturday nights after aviation hours, and it is said not to be necessary to apply to the police department.

GUNMAN HUNTED AFTER ROBBERY IN MOUNTAINS

Jaffrey, N. H., Aug. 4.—Through the dense mountain forest trails in this section of the White Mountains, armed posse are today searching the fastnesses for a bandit who, with a rifle and plenty of ammunition, has caused a reign of terror in this vicinity.

Hidden in the deep timber the bandit is expected to give his pursuers a stiff battle before he submits to capture.

The man hunt was organized as the result complaints made to the police authorities here by H. Johnson, a wealthy New York lawyer, whose Summer home here was robbed of $1,000 worth of valuables recently by a trio of outlaws, headed, the bandit now in hiding.

So great is the fear spread among the summer residents that many servants have refused to work at Interlaken, and even the natives are in a fever of another midnight visit from the robber.

Governor Bartlett has interested himself in the case, and it is in response to appeals sent to him that Attorney-general Oscar L. Young of Concord, acting on orders of the Governor, notified County Solicitor William E. Barton of Carroll County to use every available resource in running down the bandit.

Since the robbery at the Robinson home several more houses have been broken into.

FACTS

The greatest novel of the world's most popular author in pictures. The countless thousands who read the story will insist upon seeing it—the few who were not so fortunate can't afford to miss it.

Romance that appeals, adventure that thrills, intrigue that makes one's blood boil, mystery that baffles, red-blooded people that live are a few of the ingredients used in the story's concoction. The action is pyramided throughout until it reaches its pinnacle in a climax that is startling and satisfying.

A surpassingly beautiful and unusually talented girl enacts the chief role, surrounded by a cast that is exceptional.

The director, known to every "movie" fan in the country, holds a place second to none in the industry. His name to a picture means artistic interpretation.

The sum and substance of the picture's worth is emphasized in the fact that the most comprehensive releasing organization in the world has put it out as a "Special."

SOLDIERS HURT IN WRECK OF AUTO

Lawrence, Aug. 4—Leon Dragon and John Wilson, both service men at Camp Devens, narrowly escaped instant death on the Billerica road when the automobile which they were driving hit a tree after it had scaled a steep embankment.

According to the police, the men were in Lawrence and lost the last car for Lowell. Fearing punishment for overstaying their appropriated the new coupe of Dr. Fred G. Bigelsid, which was parked on Essex street.

The men were traveling at a sixty-five-mile rate when the accident happened, near Billerica bridge.

It was said that the men did not know there was a sharp curve in the road. Both were taken to St. John's Hospital, Lowell.

Dragon sustained a fractured skull. Wilson was not so badly injured although he sustained a severe shaking up.

Record of Dodging Death

London, Aug. 4—Lieutenant D. Ramsden, British navy, holds the world's record for dodging sudden death in submarines. He has served in five different submarines, all of which were sunk with all hands within four days after he left them.

THE DEAF HEAR

Rasmus Johnson resides at 21 Hancock st., Boston. He said to the writer: "A yesterday I was as much deaf as three years ago I became very deaf in right ear. The left was affected, too, but not so bad. Noise like the roaring and rushing of a mill stream seemed to me terribly. I read of the Otomo-Chemic Physicians and their marvelous success in relieving the deaf. I had them treat me and the noises are gone and I hear again."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description—CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASES, BIRTHMARKS, MOLES, FACIAL BLEMISHES, ETC.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

At undue summer exposure usually arises an undesirable surface of tan, redness or roughness, often freckles; but the sensible thing to do is to remove such aspect. There is no better nor more ordinary unexcelled way than which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin film of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently, gradually, so there is no inconvenience or detention indoors. Spread the wax lightly over entire face at bedtime, and wash it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the druggstore, use it for a week or two, and notice the marked improvement daily. When the aged-looking skin is wholly in view your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness.—Advertisement.

1 DEAD, 1 DYING IN NEW YORK GANG FEUD

Coney Island, N. Y., Aug. 4—Joseph Cohen, fur manufacturer of Manhattan, is dead, and Harry Korman, furrier, also of Manhattan, is dying of three bullet wounds in the abdomen, received in a shooting affray which caused a panic among the crowds on their way to the beach. The shooting is believed by the police to be the outgrowth of the killing of Johnny Spanish, Manhattan gang leader.

The police believe the city is on the eve of a revival of gang feuds.

The shooting of Cohen and Korman seems to have been well planned. Several began firing at the two men as they were walking with others toward the beach.

As the victims fell, one dead, the other dying, the assailants mingled with the crowd and disappeared.

Witnesses of the shooting said the shots seemed to come from different directions. None could give a definite description of the men who did the shooting.

33 FINED FOR GAMBLING IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Aug. 4—As a climax to a gambling raid in the cellar of the Hotel Newport, Harry Freeman appeared in district court today and paid a fine of $100 after pleading guilty to maintaining a gambling nuisance. The thirty-two other men caught in the net paid a fine of $5 each. They pleaded guilty to being present where gambling was in progress.

The police were said to have been misled by the fact that a game was being conducted, but when one of the largest quotas was presented Monday the swoop was made. None of the men arrested heard anything after the room and the alarm was first given until someone came face to face with Captain Charles R. Vose, on looking over his shoulder.

A stampede to escape followed, but the police were ready and no one got by the door. It is said that a 34th man was the only one to escape, he in fright having got under a table and remained until the house was cleared.

The raiding squad comprised Captain Vose and Officers William Ahearn, George Sweeney, Albert Blood, Michael Foley, Clarence Simpson, Jeremiah O'Connor, Martin Fitzgerald, James Howlit and Martin Dunn.

When "Gimpy" and "Mosho" from East Boston saw the officer coming they became interested and listened to the tale of the wanderings that were made them to the station where the captain informed the East Boston police.

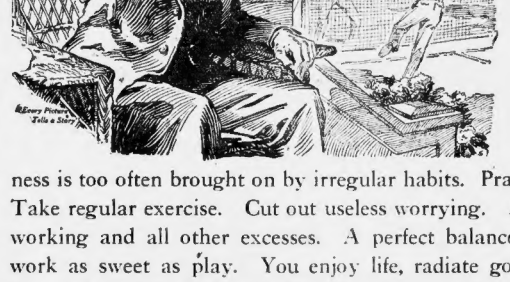
Too Young to Feel So Old!



DON'T let that bad back make you old! Get back your health and keep it. You can detect kidney weakness in its early stages, from the morning lameness, dull backache, dizzy spells, nervousness and kidney irregularities. Taken early, a short treatment with Doan's Kidney Pills will usually correct it. Kidney weakness is too often brought on by irregular habits. Practice moderation. Keep regular hours. Take regular exercise. Cut out useless worrying. Avoid over-eating, over-drinking, over-working and all other excesses. A perfect balance of brain, muscles and nerves makes work as sweet as play. You enjoy life, radiate good cheer and feel young at any age. Doan's have helped thousands. Here are some local cases:

Some Boston Cases:

Barnard Street

Thomas F. Coleman, 73 Barnard St., says: "Every time I caught cold, due to exposure at my work, it went straight to my kidneys and caused attacks of lame back. At these times my back was lame and sore and I could hardly get out of bed mornings. My kidneys acted irregularly and dizzy spells came over me, when things seemed in a blur. I always used Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me of the attacks."

Appleton Street

Mrs. E. Gibson, 59 Appleton St., says: "I know the value of Doan's Kidney Pills and gladly endorse them. I have used Doan's for years whenever my kidneys have troubled me and I have had dull backaches and soreness in my kidneys. At such times my kidneys haven't acted regularly, either. Doan's Kidney Pills have always relieved the backaches and all the other signs of kidney complaint."

Boston Street (Dorchester)

Chas. E. Whiting, Fireman, 231 Boston St., Dorchester, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times when my kidneys have troubled me, and they have always given me good results. Whenever I caught cold, it was sure to go into my kidneys, and then I would have severe backaches and soreness over my kidneys. The action of my kidneys would be irregular, too. I have always used Doan's at these times, and they have been sure to strengthen my back and regulate my kidneys."

Lexington St. (E. Boston)

Mrs. W. Hartery, 180 Lexington St., East Boston, says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for some time when I have had attacks of backache and soreness over my kidneys and they have always helped me. At such times my kidneys didn't act right, and to make matters worse my head ached. Doan's were sure to entirely remove those symptoms by strengthening my back and kidneys."

Chandler Street

Chas. G. Tabor, carpenter, 116 Chandler St., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble and found them to be just the thing for me. My back was lame and I had pains in my kidneys that made it hard for me to bend over or lift anything heavy. The action of my kidneys annoyed me by being irregular. Doan's Kidney Pills entirely removed all these symptoms of kidney complaint and put my kidneys in a healthy condition."

Dover Street

Mrs. Wm. P. Davis, 42 Dover Street, says: "I can hardly describe the misery I suffered from backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. Mornings I could hardly get out of bed because of the sharp pains in the small of my back and it took every bit of me before I could get around to do my housework. Bladder weakness bothered me a great deal. I had such pains in the back of my head I could hardly turn one way or another. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills gave me wonderful results. Nothing had ever helped me the way Doan's did."

"HOPES OF PEACE CONFERENCE VANISH," SAYS JUDGE COHALAN

ISSUES WARNING TO RULING CLASS OF ENGLAND

By DANIEL F. COHALAN,
Justice Supreme Court, New York.
(Copyright, 1919, [illegible])

ARTICLE 6.

We are asked now to abandon the advice given us by our first—and one of our greatest Presidents—against entering into entangling alliances with other powers.

Not alone should we refuse to abandon this advice, but we should more than ever make clear to the world our unfaltering determination to abide by it and to make it one of the fundamental planks in our foreign policy. By standing by it in the past we have grown great and prosperous, masters of our own destinies, arbiters of our own fate.

We have been free to avoid wars and free to remain at peace according to the exigencies of the hour and according to what we conceived to be our own interest and the best policy for the protection of the liberties of mankind. We have been free to govern our actions by the best light and information which we could obtain upon questions at the hour of action.

Our liberty of action has not been foreclosed by reason of any commitment made in advance by those who had passed off the stage of action or were no longer in a position to speak for the majority of the people of our country. In other words, we have always been in the position of being governed by the living will of the present, rather than by the dead hand of the past.

Not alone every mandate of interest, but the high call of idealism should counsel us to remain in that position and not commit ourselves to any alliance which, obeying the passion and meeting the whim of the hour, would commit those who come after us to labors and sacrifices which they should not be asked to undertake except at their own free will and upon good cause shown to them at the hour of sacrifice.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS.

We are asked now to be satisfied with a declaration of the Monroe doctrine, which, according to many thoughtful observers, weakens and jeopardizes rather than strengthens the cardinal principle of American diplomacy. In this hour when a peace conference, called into existence for the purpose of making peace, did not content itself with settling the questions at issue between the belligerents, but went up and down the world seeking problems it might settle, we should extend and strengthen, rather than weaken, the doctrine laid down by James Monroe.

We should insist that the western hemisphere be not invaded by any power from the East; that no old world possessions held here are to be increased, and we should also insist upon the absolute withdrawal from this territory of the flag of every empire or monarchy.

What is sacrosanct about the British Empire that it continues to rule vast sections of the American continent after all other empires have left its shores? The flag of Russia, of Spain, of Portugal, of Demark have been withdrawn from this hemisphere. Why should we not now insist that the flag of England should follow the others and leave here in this hemisphere, dedicated for all time to liberty and republicanism, only the flags of the free?

Why should not our great neighbor on the north, which Great Britain undoubtedly hopes some day to use as a weapon to smite us should the economic war now being waged between the countries ever reach the acute stage of military or naval warfare, or if there ever should come a conflict between England's ally, Japan and ourselves—why should not that great country have an opportunity of taking its place among the republics of the earth or even, if it chooses, of joining our country and thus bridging the gulf which separates us from our great territory of Alaska.

OUR INTERESTS HERE.

The ties which bind the people of Canada to us are every day increasing in number and in strength. The ties of trade which bind us are natural and are varied in form. The Great Lakes that lie between us are not intended to separate us, but should by a thousand ties of commerce, draw us more closely together. Great numbers of our people come from the same racial stocks, and in the late war, according to reports coming from ever-increasing sources through our returned soldiers, our own soldiers found a dozen ways in which they resembled one another for every way in which either found that they resembled the British soldiers.

Thoughtful observers in the United States as well as in Canada realize that our interests are in the western rather than in the eastern hemisphere and that the views of an ever-increasing number of Canadians with relation to the future of Ireland, the future of Shantung, are those of a majority of the people of America rather than those of the governing body of England.

The people of Canada are essentially a freedom-loving people, aside from what is pleased to call itself the governing class, which seeks for special privileges like the same class in England. Canadians desire liberty for themselves and would like to see the blessings of liberty given to every people.

More than that, if there be anything in the repeated declarations of Joseph Chamberlain in his attempts to justify the rubbing out of the two little republics of South Africa that republican institutions adjoining British territory were a menace to Britain, the governing class in England can look upon the continued existence of the American republic only as a menace to England and we have now the right to ask of her, having saved England, that as an evidence of her good faith in saying that she is a friend of liberty, that she withdrew her flag from this continent and leave it to be entirely dedicated to liberty and freedom.

MAN IS SIGHING FOR PEACE.

The late war aroused mankind to a realization of the fact that without regard to the boundaries of a country or the lines of race, war is a curse to mankind; that it takes not only millions of a generation to death and leaves other millions subject to sickness and disease as an aftermath, but it imposes on the future generations a back-breaking burden of taxation which means countless hardships and privations, while it brings only to the specially privileged peoples in every country immense fortunes which break down the foundations of liberty and sap the principles on which freedom exists.

Without regard to race or religion, man is sighing for peace. He realizes that war is an abnormal condition, and men are seeking as they have never sought before to insure a peace that will prevent and destroy war.

Mankind lived in the hope that the Peace Conference was to be a setting for the ending of all wars. Peoples were to be taken from the thralldom of their aggressors, natural boundaries were to be established between States, armaments were to be destroyed, cannon were to be made into ploughshares, and the fourteen points of President Wilson were to be made the basis of an enduring peace.

The Peace Conference has practically adjourned, and all the hopes that were based upon it are passing into oblivion like the illusions of dreams. But the mass of mankind is more than ever insistent that there must be an end to human destruction and to the awful butchery and suffering that modern war spells for humanity. It has been driven into their minds that only by freedom to the oppressed of all nations can peace come, putting an end to the rule of the few and by bringing about government by the many, bringing at once liberty to man and an end to all war.

There may be for a short time a brief respite for those who remain in power, though they have deceived the people who have seen promises solemnly made, lightly broken. But no just or permanent peace can be made until the purposes to which the American people set their hands when they entered the war have been attained, until autocracy in all its forms has been destroyed, until not alone the militarism that was breaking the back of Europe but the navalism which is oppressing and controlling the whole world shall be destroyed and the right of self-determination shall be given, not alone to some, but to all the peoples of the earth.

A COURT OF NATIONS.

A Court of Nations will come in its own due time that will embrace all the people of the earth, that will see to it that all peoples are free, and that will see to it that the world war will actually bring a permanent peace. Such a court will exalt justice and will destroy tyranny, but it will be a real court, open to all peoples, and not an unreal league which is only another name for an Anglo-American Alliance, a Cecil-Smuts plan to exalt autocracy and enslave mankind.

Every red-blooded man favors such a Court of Nations as he favors the brotherhood of man and the council of perfection, but the more intensely he favors such an ideal the more he objects to and abhors the hypocrisy which would steal the ideal in order to cover a treaty of alliance that would fasten the robber grip of England on all the world.

Having set forth the claims of Ireland to independence, her demand and her right to be free; having exposed the hypocrisy of England in her varied attempts to confuse the issue, having torn away the mask behind which England hoped to securely hide from the gaze of the world, let us see what Ireland offers to the world as an evidence of her good faith.

The people of Ireland seek for themselves a form of government which would do justice to all the people within the four shores of Ireland. They seek to set up a government representing equality to all, injustice to none. They demand and will insist upon political equality and religious freedom for all the people of Ireland.

They insist that the majority must rule, but that the rights of political equality and religious freedom shall be given to all members of the minority as well as of the majority.

The people of Ireland believe that the minority is entitled to guarantees, but not to control. They are ready to embody a guarantee of these rights in their constitution, as they have been embodied in the Constitution of the United States.

They are ready to adopt these things which made for success in America and to avoid those things which were found to be mistakes or errors.

CONTRASTS IRELAND AND U. S.

As a result of the Revolution in America estates were confiscated and men were exiled. The people of Ireland, however, are ready to say to the small group in Ulster who say they cannot remain as an integral part of the Irish people that they would part with them with regret, but will guarantee to them, if they choose to sell, the full market value of all property which they own in Ireland.

The people of Ireland ask every man of whatever blood, of whatever religion, who is now in Ireland to remain in Ireland on terms which will insure absolute equality for all. They point out that there is no instance in its history of religious persecution or racial intolerance due to the majority of the people of Ireland; that wherever there has been prosecutions it has been by the minority, urged on against the majority by the English government.

The people of Ireland point out that in every section of the country, in every generation, Protestants of different sects or religious persuasions have been put forward as leaders by a majority of the Irish people, called to the highest elective office within the gift of the majority of the people. They urge that no fairer way of judging the future can be found than that furnished by the experiences of the past.

They are willing at all times to accord to others the rights which they insist upon for themselves. They demand, without further delay, that their present rights shall be recognized by the world and that international recognition shall be given to the republican form of government established in Ireland after a plebiscite held on her shores last December in the presence of the great English army of occupation and under conditions which held the machinery of government at that time in the hands of Great Britain.

All that any friend of Ireland asks of America is that present conditions in Ireland be studied fairly and dispassionately. In no other part of the world can there be found a parallel to the manner in which the population of Ireland has been reduced by the English government within the past seventy years.

Why should England that cried out with such strength against injustice in Belgium, be permitted to maintain and continue her rule of might in Ireland? Even her apologists admit that England's rule in Ireland is based only upon her bayonets and cannon.

EXPLANATIONS THAT FAIL.

How can England satisfy the conscience of the world with her explanation that what is wrong in Belgium and in Alsace is right in Ireland? She says that the people of Ireland should not cry out for liberty because, forsooth, they are today enjoying a larger measure of prosperity than they formerly had. Why should they not have it? Is it not the result only of their own thrift, their own industry, their own labors?

The apologists of England say that Ireland did an immense business with that country last year—that this is a sufficient answer to Ireland's cry that she is badly governed. How typical was Clive of the English government of all times when he said, after he had been accused of robbing India of immense treasure, that when he saw the wealth of the country he was astonished at his own moderation! England's statesmen feel that it is right to steal Irish sheep so long as they return a shop to the Irish owner.

The proposition is an insult to the intelligence and conscience of the world and in spite of the marvelous system of propaganda which the English diplomat has built up, he cannot prevent the cry of Ireland for freedom from resounding in all parts of the world and coming back to plague him until it is satisfied by having justice done to Ireland.

The English governing class are the Bourbons of modern days. They learn nothing, forget nothing. Let them beware lest the aroused public opinion of mankind shall sweep them as it swept their German and Russian cousins into oblivion and break into bits the British Empire, which is the last bulwark of autocracy against the on-rushing tide of liberty and democracy.

(The End.)

Read what the people who work for you have to say to you

The manufacturer who makes your shoes is working for you. The store that sells you shoes is working for you. So is your grocer and baker and gas company and clothier and every person who makes or sells anything that you buy.

Quite often these people have messages for you. They want to tell you about new goods or changes in styles and prices or give you other information.

It is not practical for them to come and speak to you personally because they have too many customers to serve. So they put their messages in advertisements in your daily newspaper.

It is to your interest to read advertisements. They are published for your benefit. Advertisements keep you informed as to what manufacturers and merchants are doing for you. They help you to buy the right goods at the right time and make the most of your money.

You'll find that business concerns which tell you frankly what they are doing are most to be depended upon. Stores that advertise are progressive stores that have something really worth while to say to you. Manufacturers who advertise their goods have confidence in them; it does not pay to advertise anything that is not good.

Make a habit of reading advertisements. It is interesting as well as profitable.

VENDETTA DEATH SUSPECT IS ARRESTED

Police Believe Maynard Man Was Implicated in Series of Murders

Maynard, Aug. 4.—Joseph Graceffa, believed by the police to be a member of an organization responsible for a series of murders in Middlesex County last Winter, is under arrest charged with the fatal shooting in this town on June 15 of Joseph Sipoli of Fitchburg.

Graceffa was taken into custody by Deputy Chief of Police Daniel Connors as he was leaving his home in Pine street, where he had been visiting his wife and children.

When searched at police headquarters a 45-calibre automatic revolver was found in a pocket of his clothing made to carry the weapon for instant use. The pistol was loaded with a clip of nine bullets.

The shooting of Sipoli took place on Main street only three hours after he arrived in town, accompanied by Rizzo Dianisa. The latter, who was shot through the head, was discharged from the Massachusetts General Hospital about two weeks ago. He claims that when they met Graceffa, accompanied by two other men, a fusillade of shots greeted them.

Sipoli fell dead in front of Mrs. Luigi Graceffa's home. The body of her husband was found floating in the Charles River at Waltham early last March. Knife wounds, with which the body was marked, led the police to believe the man had met with foul play, and an inquest resulted in the arrest of a man living in Lowell. Investigations at that time connected the murder with another in Fitchburg, the victim there being a relative of Luigi's.

Joseph Graceffa disappeared from this town after the shooting affray and had not been heard from until arrested.

New England Police Asked to Watch for South Orange Youngsters

The Massachusetts police have been asked to the police authorities of East Orange, N. J., to watch for Marguerite Forrest and Daniel Connelly, both seventeen, who have been missing from their respective homes in Orange since Saturday morning. The couple, according to the police, sped away toward the New England states in a high-powered automobile, the property of Connelly's father.

AUTO DISAPPEARS.

Miss Forrest is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forrest of No. 27 Cambridge street, and Connelly the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Connelly of No. 295 Barnett street.

According to the story, told by Mrs. Forrest to the police, Miss Forrest, a pupil of the East Orange High School, returned home about 10:30 Friday night, and told her parents she had been to the movies with young Connelly.

Later that night Mr. Connelly noticed the police that his automobile had been taken from his garage and that he suspected his son Vincent had taken the car.

HAVE FRIENDS HERE.

An hour later the slamming of a door and the whirr of an automobile awakened the parents of Miss Forrest.

Although it is believed by the parents of Miss Forrest that their daughter has left with young Connelly for the West, it is generally thought by the police and friends of the young couple that they are bound somewhere for New England and more likely Massachusetts, where it is said they have many young friends.

Henry V. Connelly, father of the boy, is an iron manufacturer, with a plant in New York. Miss Forrest's father is a contractor.

TOOK CAR BEFORE.

Last March, according to the police, young Connelly disappeared with his father's automobile and his brother Raymond's army uniform. The latter, who was a lieutenant, was home at the time on a furlough. A few days following Vincent figured in an automobile accident in Philadelphia. Later the lad was located by the police in Washington, and was brought back home by his father.

HECKLERS BUSY AT FORD HALL FORUM

Demand to Know Why Ireland Was Left Out of Treaty

Frequent heckling of the speaker with cries of "What about Ireland?" marked the opening meeting of the Ford Hall Forum on the Commons when Louis D. Post of Washington, assistant secretary of the Department of Labor, delivered an address favoring the League of Nations.

A man named Smith appeared to be the most persistent disturber.

Even after being cautioned from the platform and admonished by a police officer to cease his attacks he accused Mr. Post of being a "Hessian posing as an American."

RADICALS ADD THEIR VOICE.

Several radicals also added their votes to the interruptions. "Three cheers for the Bolshevik!" cried out one of these after Mr. Post had referred to Bolshevism in a slighting manner.

"What about Ireland?" was a question hurled at the speaker by the man called Smith, while the crowd joined in with "Well, what about Ireland?" whereupon Mr. Post announced that every one would be given opportunity of asking questions at the conclusion of the address. This served to stop the heckling until the question period opened.

Then Mr. Smith opened up with a bombardment of questions. In replying, Mr. Post went into one of the issues at length, whereupon the questioner interrupted with, "You are giving a speech and not answering my question." Cries of "shut up" directed at the hecklers, followed.

Stating, in answer to one person that the "League of Nations does not exist yet," Mr. Post started to explain a situation when Mr. Smith interposed. "Thank God it don't exist. I hope it never does; then we will have real Americans here instead of Britishers, posing as Americans, like you."

IRELAND NOT A NATION.

"Why didn't President Wilson and the others live up to their statements about wishing to help small nations, even if this did include Ireland," came from down front, other questions of like nature poured in to which Mr. Post replied, "Ireland was not included in the treaty because it was not a nation at war with Germany agreed as a part of Great Britain. It was not a separate nation."

The speaker in his address advanced practically all of the leading arguments in favor of the League of Nations.

COLLEGE COACHING TO BE TAUGHT AT ILLINOIS

Urbana, Ill., Aug. 4—The coming Gamps, Staggs, Yosts and Zuppkes in the athletic coaches of the future—will not be developed haphazardly. Instead of being educated for other professions and taking up coaching incidentally, the new coaches will have the benefit of four years' special training for their work and the practice of a university degree.

That is the plan of the University of Illinois, where a department of athletic coaching and physical education has been established. A four-year course in coaching will open September 22. Those who complete it will receive the degree of bachelor of science.

FEDERAL JUDGE SCORES CRIMINAL WHO FAINTED

Indianapolis, Aug. 4.—When Peter Weimer, former patrolman at Evansville, Ind., was fined $100 and sentenced to six months in jail in Federal Court for "winking" at the transportation of liquor from Kentucky, he "fainted" in the approved film way.

"Don't pick him up!" said Judge A. B. Anderson to a deputy marshal. "He's just acting, others have done it before. This man is a good play actor. His name is German, too. Great play actors, those Germans. The Hohenzollern boys, the Bethmann-Hollwegs, the Hindenburgs and Mr. Weimer here, are all great play actors. Greatest in the world. Weimer soon recovered.

HUGH FULLERTON

DAMON RUNYON

TAMPERING WITH BASEBALL VERY ANCIENT ART

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Again we have the argument over the "shine" ball, the "spitter" and such freak forms of pitching. The success of Eddie Cicotte this season is mainly responsible for the revival of the kick on his alleged style of delivery, and it brings up the question again as to what the league is going to do about it.

Legislation against such pitching is about as useful as passing laws without providing penalties. It is practically impossible for umpires to prevent pitchers from using the spit ball, the shine ball, the "emery" or the "scaler." The National League is striving to prevent pitchers from applying artificial means in making the ball do odd stunts in the air, while the American League president Mr. Johnson says he will stop all kinds of freak deliveries if the owners favor such legislation. The fact is the owner will, a shine ball pitcher does not want to stop that style, and practically every owner in the two leagues has one or more pitchers whose effectiveness depends upon something more than speed and curves.

It would increase hitting to be sure, if pitchers were limited to a fast ball and a curve. The owners and everyone else agree that more hitting it what is wanted, but so long as they make more hitting for their own teams and less for the other fellow it is rather idle to talk of legislating freak deliveries out of existence. The Kansas legislature once proposed to legislate against the law of gravitation and that law would have been as easy to enforce as a law against some form of winging a baseball. Pitchers are shining and winging balls all of the time, always have and always will.

NOT NEW DELIVERY.

We speak of the "scaler" as if it was a new departure in baseball. Yet pitchers have used it since the earlier days of the game. True, only a few understood the use of a "wing" spot on the ball, but those were great pitchers. The first fellow I ever saw who deliberately used it to scuff the ball to make it dart and sail in odd ways was Clark Griffith, who also was a past master of the use of the shine ball and who caused more arguments by blacking one side of the sphere and leaving the other darker than Cicotte's shine ever could.

Griff never would tell what he did to the ball, and for years denied that he ever did anything to it. He had a way of hitting the ball against the heel of his shoe, arguing that he was "knocking the dirt out" of its splices. Umpires would examine the ball carefully and could not find a mark on it, but when Griffith wanted the ball to take a shoot in a close place he nicked it with his splices and it darted. For the information of modern pitchers I will state that Griffith not only used the scuffed ball to make it "sail," but he used the same rough spot to help his famous slow ball, and he probably could show them now how he did it.

It is generally credited to Radbourn that he taught Griffith how to pitch and the old timers vowed that Rad used a scuffed ball as well as a glycerine spot in pitching Radbourn, of course, taught Griff much of his art, but the little fox learned more than his teacher ever did.

BALL BECAME "WINGY."

One Spring the Chicago club, under Anson, trained at Hot Springs and played on Whittington Park, which was newly sodded. The surface was clay and gravel and the moment a ball was batted along that surface it became "wingy" with small flakes of leather sticking up on the surface. Griff always was a great lover of a joke and he loved to get a "sucker" and play with him. He had me catching and was making the ball perform all sorts of stunts to add to the difficulty. Suddenly he became interested in the ball and rasped it along the ground before pitching. The ball darted down and then nearly ripped the mitt as I dived for it. He studied it for a moment and then threw again at the ball, sailed entirely sharply. He tried gripping the ball in half a dozen different ways, including overhand, sidearm and underneath and the ball acted so queerly that half the players began to watch.

"Say," Griff remarked, "if I could pitch on this ground all season no one ever would get a hit."

He worked three innings that afternoon and my score book of that practice game showed eight strikeouts of nine men up and he never used one curve, merely made the ball fool batters by fingering the scuffed spots and he hit two batters who stepped into balls that bit them on the body.

Whether he used the knowledge gained that day or not I never knew, but the rest of us considered it a local phenomenon and paid no more attention to it.

DONOHUE KNEW.

Everyone on the team knew Griffith "was something," but what it was we were uncertain and he never would tell. He would only laugh and say it was all imagination and that he never did a thing to the ball. I think Tim Donohue is the only man who knew when Griff was using the quest shoot although he may never have given a thought as to how it was done.

Tim always bet all ball games in Boston. Although a Taunton man he did not like Boston and the fans there rarely smiled on him. Therefore he loved to beat them and never failed to bet on Chicago when Griffith was pitching. One day Tim had a hundred dollars in the hip pocket of his uniform. An hour before he placed the bet he wanted to know whether or not Griffith, who was to pitch, was right. Griffith knew this and when he started to warm up Donohue raced out to catch him.

"Come on, Griff, show me what you've got," said the lanky catcher.

Griffith pitched curves, slows, fast balls, and all the time Tim was coaching.

"Now, old boy, the real one," he begged.

"That's all I've got," said Griffith.

"No. No—the real one, Griff," Tim pleaded.

For fifteen minutes the farce went on. Tim imploring Griff to pitch "the real one" and Griff denying everything else. Finally just before the umpiring call was made Griff sent a sailer shooting up to the catcher darting toward at the finish. Whoop, Hooligan, yelled Tim, and dragging its roll from his pocket he dashed for the bookies to bet his friends the enemy.

CUPPY "WINGED" BALL.

Both "Ning" Cuppy, the slowest pitcher who ever worked, and the famous Dad Clarke used the same ball that made Griffith famous and Cuppy's extreme slowness in pitching was said to be due to the fact that he used his finger balls to "wing" the ball and required much time to prepare it before pitching. But a peculiar fact that opposing batsmen declared that they did not mind Cuppy's slow ball shoot as much as they did the long delay before he delivered a ball to them. His delaying gave the batter a chance to grow nervous and over-anxious. The same is partly true in the case of Griffith.

Griff's famous strikeout of Kip Selbach in a game at Washington was a illustration. There were runners on second and third; Chicago was leading by one run and one was out, with Selbach at bat. Kip was one of the greatest of hitters, and Griffith was starting with him, teasing, tantalizing, delaying and "stalling." The pitcher and batter were calling each other names and Selbach asked other Selbach was worked up to a high pitch. With three balls and two strikes called, Griffith delayed longer and longer while Selbach, on his toes, was watching Griff closely. Suddenly Griff called:

"Why, you big stiff, you couldn't take the ball in your hand and make a hit in a pinch," Kip yelped. "You couldn't hit this."

He deliberately tossed the ball slowly underhand in a high arc toward the plate. Selbach stretched forward, and, as it neared the plate, before the ball came to the plate, was so far off balance he fell on his hands and knees. The ball went over his back, the umpire called a strike, and as was so frequent he chased Griff clear down to second base with his bat, threatening to beat him for showing him up.

MADE MUSH BALLS.

In the old days, before such precautions were taken to prevent tampering with the ball, it was a general practice for some players to "fix" a number of balls before they ever went into play. One favorite method was to remove the tissue, foil and the wrapping and take a ball and squeeze it in a vise until two "mush" spots were made. In outward appearance the ball was the same as a sound one, but in the hands of a pitcher who knew, it became unhittable.

The old Chicago club managed to get one of these doctored balls into a game in New York once, when Cy Seymour, afterwards famous as an outfielder, was pitching. The Chicago pitcher used it with great effect for one inning, but the next time Seymour got hold of it without knowing that it was slightly lopsided. He hit three and passed two batters before the ball was fouled out of the game and the visitors breathed a sigh of relief when they saw it disposed of. Under Seymour's speed that ball was cutting didos in the air and shooting so that it was practically impossible to dodge it.

GILMORE TO REJOIN SYRACUSE ELEVEN

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 4—Eugene Gilmore, former star centre of the Syracuse University football eleven, who enlisted in the aviation section, Signal Corps, shortly after the outbreak of the war, will return to college in the Fall, he notified Coach "Chick" O'Neill and Graduate Manager Walter Smith today.

Gilmore played end, the Orange eleven two years ago, and was considered one of the best players men universed by the local institution in years. He was but recently discharged from service, and will answer the call to gridiron candidates here next month.

Three other former varsity football players will be among those to report. "Chief" Newberry, a crack backfield man, has been corresponding with the athletic authorities, and his return is anticipated. Robertson and Cliff Steel have also notified the football mentors that they will be back on the hill this Fall.

Short Ship Racing On Readville Track This Week

Boston followers of harness horse racing will be flocking to see the Short Snippers on the Readville track tomorrow, the occasion of a three-day meet, during which races in ten classes will be run off.

Incidentally it will be the first test of the Short Ship horses on a mile track this season and surprises are likely in order as the going will be somewhat different on the long home stretch, from what it has been on the short tracks the racing has been confined to thus far this season.

Purses aggregating $6,500 will be divided among the winners.

TENNIS STARS BEGIN PLAY AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Aug. 4—Play began today in the annual invitation lawn tennis tournament with an entry list that included the foremost players of this country as well as stars from other lands. The tournament was expected to give a good line on the form of the players who will participate in the national doubles championship at the Longwood Cricket Club courts next week and the All-Comers' tourney at Forest Hills, L. I., August 25.

The Australian stars, Norman E. Brookes, Gerald Patterson, Randolph Lycett and R. V. Thomas are expected to arrive in time to participate, while Kumasee and Yamasaki are Japan's representatives in the meet.

Brookes, captain of the Australian team, and Patterson, his young teammate, drew byes and will go into the second round without competition.

Randolph Lycett and R. V. Thomas, the other Australian entry, will have easy competition in the first round.

Included in the opening round pairings are the following:

Vincent Richards, the youthful star, and Clarence J. Griffin, California cracks; M. E. McLaughlin, former champion, and C. W. Wrightman, of Boston; Douglas Watters, the former Southern champion, and W. T. Tilden, New York star; Ben Yamasaki, the Japanese player, and Alexander G. Gowan, one of the newer school of California experts; R. Hall of New York and R. L. Murray, California star.

Ichiya Kumasee, R. Norris Williams, 2d, F. C. Inman, T. C. Bundy and William F. Johnson have comparatively easy opponents.

9 NEW ENGLAND LEAGUERS FOR BRAVES

When the Braves return from their present Western trip next week, Manager Stallings will find at Braves Field, awaiting his inspection, no less than nine young ball players who are practicing there. These players are the pick of the New England League which shut up shop last Saturday night, a month ahead of scheduled time. Scout Jack Slattery has been quietly spending several days at Portland, Pittsburg, Haverhill and elsewhere in the New England circuit. The men he picked out as having sufficient promise to warrant further observation have all been secured by the Boston club on trial with one payment to be made if they are returned, and another if they are retained.

Four of the players come from Portland—Bailey, an outfielder; O'Connor, outfielder; Morgan, a pitcher, and Catcher Sweetland. From Haverhill is Anderson, a southpaw pitcher.

From Pittsburg come outfielder Jacobson and, in all probability, Outfielder Loftus and Catcher Prelog. Jacobson is a natural slugger, according to Scout Slattery.

NEW YORK CHESS TOURNEY TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 4—The annual mid-summer meeting of the New York State Chess Association will begin next week at the Troy Chess Club, where the annual inter-county matches between teams of four for the deGoosee cup will be contested tomorrow.

YANKEE OWNERS TO GO TO COURT ABOUT MAYS

New York, Aug. 4—Angered by the refusal of President Ban Johnson to lift the suspension of Carl Mays, Messrs. Ruppert and Huston, owners of the local American league club, are threatening court action. Ruppert and Huston claim that three of the American League clubs filing objections to the transfer of Mays to New York were negotiating for the services of the submarine hurler up to the very minute he was secured by the Yankees.

RED SOX SHUT OUT NEWPORT TROJANS, 5-0

Newport, Aug. 4—The Red Sox, with Foul Mesquer on the mound, shut out the Trojans, 5 to 0, in a fast game. The Boston rookie pitcher hurled a great contest, allowing but four scattered hits and striking out five men. Babe Ruth was the centre of attraction and was loudly cheered every time he came to the bat. He disappointed the crowd by his failure to knock the ball out of the park, but managed to insert two singles that helped his team to victory.

Breaks Course Record

Milford, Aug. 4—Theodore Walcott has established a new record on the Milford golf links, doing the course of nine holes in thirty-six strokes, which is two less than the best previous record of thirty-eight by B. M. Bristow Draper of Hopedale.

CORBETT'S COLUMN

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

(Copyright, 1919, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The lure of the game is a wonderful thing. It is like a powerful magnet that keeps on pulling the athlete back to his favorite pastime as long as coming back is a physical possibility. It is the magic something about any red-blooded sport that makes for its popularity and attracts new blood to take the place of the old.

It applies in baseball, boxing, tennis, football—in fact every game in which red blood and the joy of possessing it may find an outlet for pentup energy.

Boxing is notable for the grip it takes on those who follow it. Many boxers go along for years, meeting every body in their class, winning, losing and breaking even, but still capable boxers with all of it, and in demand as long as they can put up interesting exhibitions.

"Comebacks" in boxing are few and far between where champions are concerned, it is true, and a heavyweight champion, once defeated, generally retires from the public eye for all time. But the little fellows—the bantams, feathers, lights and welters—keep going as long as they have the strength and speed, and they hold their popularity. 'Tis the lure of the ring that holds them; the joy of hearing the gong, as an old fire horse feels it when bells are clanging, and there is a pungent odor of smoke in the air.

In baseball the country's best players hold their places in the select set for years. A defeat here and there means nothing to them. They often meet defeat one week and square accounts with their conquerors the next. Take F. B. Alexander, as an example. He ranks as one of the greatest and most consistent tournament players this country has ever produced and he is still in demand for tournament play.

Maurice E. McLoughlin, former National champion has heard the call of the court again and will be among the contestants in the coming National tourney at Forest Hills, L. I., in which the title will be at stake this month.

Perhaps no game ever played has seen as many comebacks as baseball. Players come up to the big show, star a few years and pass along, only to "find" themselves once again, after a season or two in slower company, and come back to bask in the limelight once more. Babe Adams is a notable comeback. Babe Adams who pitched the world's series of 1909 and whose pitching this year for the Pittsburgh Pirates has been a revelation. Even Hans Wagner came back once after he had announced his determination to hang up the old uniform and call it quits.

Many a player, discouraged over a poor season, has determined to vacate his place in the ranks in the Fall of the year, only to feel the irresistible lure of the diamond when the next Spring came along and he himself to Dixie, where bats crack in the balmy air and the seat of the ball in the big mitts of the catchers is heard before the snow melts away in the northland.

The young player who shine for a brief spell, only to find it stars suddenly dimmed, invariably refuses to admit that he is a failure.

The most interesting case of this kind that has occurred in many a season is the case of Ferdie Schupp, the young southpaw recently traded to the Louis Cardinals for Catcher Pat Snyder by Manager McGraw.

Schupp's trouble started with a sore arm. He developed a faulty flipper in the Spring of 1918 at Marlin and throughout the season he was forced to sit on the bench. But he was not the wicked cut ball he had been before his sore arm examined experts and he was told that with rest enough to let his muscles relax he needed most.

Manager McGraw had confidence in Schupp, too. He had the brilliant young southpaw in 1917, who won twenty-one and lost but seven games, would come back.

Last Spring, in Florida, he reported to the Giants and nurse his arm back into shape. But he failed. The control he once had was gone. He couldn't locate the plate with consistency and as the season wore on he showed no real improvement. Finally Mac saw a chance to make sale that would bring one of the catchers in the National league to the Giants in exchange for a useless pitcher, and Schupp went to St. Louis for Snyder, probably a handsome piece of cash.

Schupp was heart broken (he told his friends that he will never report to the St. Louis) and a revelation. Even going into business within his father in Louisville, his home town.

NEHF TRADE ABOUT WORST EVER MADE IN BASEBALL

It's time for the Rabbit
And Hankus to go—
The fans want them here,
But think of the dough.
Songs of the Bleachers.

By NICK FLATLEY.

Baseball trades have been flying around our unsuspecting heads so fast these days that everybody's getting groggy. All trades create some unfavorable comment, but you've got to hand it to the Nehf transaction when it comes to unanimous bewailing

We haven't heard anybody yet say a good word for the deal and what's more we don't expect to. From any angle except the financial, the lowly Braves have been handed a knockout. But, of course, the financial side of things is the big side these days. There's about as much sport to the stagnate end of the pastime as there is to digging trenches or something.

In the first place fans don't like to see stars traded in mid season to teams that are fighting for the pennant. Sending Nehf to the Giants and Mays to Yanks appeals to your fan as much as a heavy shower at 2 o'clock. It would be a simple matter to bar such deals after July 4 or so but the moguls haven't had time to do that.

STALLINGS HARDLY PLEASED.

And besides the ones with the big bankrolls would be opposed, because the closeness of the race or the sport of a tight struggle mean nothing in their young lives. They have the money and want to sit where they can pick off heroes and get the big profits [illegible] post season series means.

It can of course be argued that [illegible] Braves needed the money that [illegible] brought, but that doesn't jibe [illegible] with the statements of Owner [illegible] who some time back said that he was out to buy, not sell athletes, and had plenty of cash if he could [illegible] and purchase [illegible] players.

[illegible] deal which tossed Herzog to [illegible] Cubs has much to recommend it [illegible] as the Braves get a couple of players who rate up to big league standards, in addition to much money. The departure of Buck, however, removes a great part of what was left of Braves color. It's a mighty safe bet that Manager Stallings is far from being tickled at the way his team is being [illegible] around.

NEHF GOOD FOR YEARS

If the Braves officials were out to build up a ball club, as per announcement, Nehf would have been absolutely the last player to go. He's one of the best left-handed pitchers extant. He's a comparatively young hurler, with many years of service stretching ahead. He was the most feared of any of the Braves pitchers, save possibly Rudolph, and Dick hasn't the advantage of Arthur's youth.

It sure looks as if Arthur would [illegible] a mortgage on the pennant for the Giants, who also [illegible] the Cubs, in a mad [illegible] drive when the Reds proved [illegible] surge was nothing in the way [illegible]. The shuffle of course [illegible] the [illegible] that Owner Stoneham of the Giants is the real [illegible] power [illegible] of the Braves but [illegible] nothing to prove that little [illegible].

From a Boston viewpoint, there's [illegible] conclusion. The Braves are [illegible] up for money that the team [illegible] amount to a pinch of snuff [illegible] Grant, it would seem is out [illegible] as close to an even break as he can, and never mind what happens to his shattered ball team.

GOOD CHANCE MISSED.

This was a year when the Braves could have cleaned up nicely had they got going. The balance of local popularity was swinging their way, with the Red Sox slipping. It was a year chock full of baseball enthusiasm and resultant profit. Saturday's capacity crowd at the Fenway was a sample of that, even with the champions down in the second division. The gatherings at Braves Field when the team was [illegible] is worst [illegible] of doldrums also proved it.

But the enthusiasm and popularity and everything [illegible] have now gone flying out the Charles River or somewhere.

The sale of Mays to New York wasn't the sportiest proposition in the world and if B. Johnson [illegible] and lets him play, he [illegible] a pat [illegible] premium on [illegible] when the [illegible] oval one is a star.

BIDDING WAS HIGH.

But from a Boston way of looking at things, Mays was all through with the Red Sox, the minute he jumped the team. His value as a player was [illegible]. Trading him was a business matter [illegible] it would have made more of a hit had the athlete in question been suspended for the rest of the year, and then sold. But, of course, the bidding was [illegible] the [illegible] very close.

Looks now as [illegible] the courts would be drawn [illegible] Mays matter, [illegible] as the New York owners aren't exactly delighted with their fancy priced star's suspension. And just to make the thing fifty-fifty, Mister Nehf [illegible] departed without announcing that he would [illegible] for himself. [illegible] he'll get it. A pitcher like Arthur could demand half the Polo Grounds from Jawn McGraw these days, and get it.

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER"

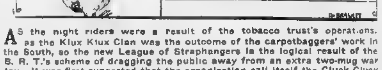
THERE is a reason for the high cost of living. Milk popped up to thirty cents for a pinty looking quart, because the cows went democratic and wouldn't scoff anything but four-leaf clovers. This nimble flower is supposed to be very lucky, and it is. The hicks, middlemen and distributors are getting fat, but Friend Public looks as if he had swallowed a war map loaded with pink, green and heliotrope pins.

* * *

EGGS hyped up to eighty cents for a short dozen because the hens are dodging so many Fords, that the minute they lay an egg, the egg starts to sprout fenders and floating gears, and has to be hatched in a service station. But we can't spot any reason why balancing yourself on your own bunions should cost more than it did before the war. It does, though and there aint any reason for it. Which must be the reason why it does.



AS the night riders were a result of the tobacco trust's operations, as the Klux Klux Clan was the outcome of the carpetbaggers' work in the South, so the new League of Straphangers is the logical result of the B. R. T.'s scheme of dragging the public away from an extra two-mug war tax. It was first suggested that the organization call itself the Cluck Cluck Clan, which would be appropriate, as anybody who would stand for traffic conditions this long is a cluck for your life.

* * *

THE new League of Leather Jerkers is designed to protect the strap hangers. If they want to protect him they should give him shinguards and corn pads. If the Association of Hook Danglers have the interests of the straphangers at heart, they will stake him to a set of rubber elbows that will stretch far enough to enable him to grab about three cents worth of a ten-cent strap.

* * *

THE Bund of Flatwheel Bouncers is now organized and will have the largest standing committee of any club in the world, Matteawan and Bloomingdale included. There will be a Rough House Committee to investigate charges against any member who sits down while there is room to stand up or dangle from a strap like a string of red peppers from a Dorchester avenue window.

* * *

THE B. E. will joggle down in history as the line that put the strap within reach of the workingman. The League of Danglers doesn't want to take anything away from the B. E., and they hope the feeling is mutual.

THE Amalgamated League of Riding Pedestrians doesn't ask anything or any favor from anybody. They stand on their merits and by the grace of the seating capacity of the B. E. Their motto is the same one that Ben Franklin gave the Thirteen Original States. They will either hang together or separately. Provided there are enough straps to go around.

* * *

WHEN a guy is hanging by the neck in this town, his troubles are ended. When he's hanging by the wrist, they are just starting.

* * *

BUT the League of Strap Danglers is after the strap profiteers and will make 'em walk pretty. The League will knock 'em coo-coo if it takes fifty years. They will make the world safe for straphangers provided that the world stays out of street cars. By the time the Danglers' Society gets through with the B. E. the only straps left in the world will be on straitjackets.

* * *

BUT by that time it looks as if there will be a swamgoozled more strait jackets in the world than there are straps.

Beatrice Fairfax Writes on Some of the People Who Abuse the Privileges in That Realm of Fancy

By Beatrice Fairfax

(Who occupies a unique position in the writing world as an authority on the problems of girls.)

PERHAPS everyone has felt at some time or other, how delightful it would be to hang up one's personality on a hook in the wardrobe, go out and be someone else for a little while.

We are all quite ready to assume another's problems, worries, sorrows, even, under the impression that they don't really amount to much. It's our own problems, worries and boredom that really count.

Zangwill has a delightful story on this theme, in which a prime minister used to change places with a pastry cook. And the late Katherine Thurston wrote a far less artistic but more widely read novel on the same [illegible] taking member of par[illegible] used to swap lives with [illegible] journalist who resem[illegible] Perhaps you remember [illegible] It was called "The Masqueraders."

O. Henry's tales abound in such themes, but it was reserved for Mr. McManus, an express driver [illegible] a week, to turn these heroes of fiction into regular pikers with [illegible] Arabian Nights "going-on" in New York only recently.

And why Mr. McManus was taken in hand by the law and compelled to pay $15 a week alimony out of a salary of $22 instead of being made Secretary of the Currency or some such job where his financial genius would have real scope, is a mystery.

You will recall from the newspaper accounts that this seventy-six-year-old expressman went from house to house and shop to shop delivering packages by day [illegible] no sooner did the lights begin to [illegible] than McManus [illegible] man about town.

Story Has Its Psychic Side

Now, the interesting thing about this septuagenarian sport is not that he went out to see the lights twinkle, not that his wife [illegible] hailed into court and [illegible] alimony, not that he wearied of being an elderly expressman by day and enjoyed masquerading [illegible] youth by night [illegible] have been done since the days of Rameses II by gentlemen of ancient Egypt and modern New York. But the wonder is how McManus managed to do them on $22 a week.

His wife, who seems to have had no appreciation of her husband's financial genius, said he [illegible] that brought his income up to $40 a week. Even so, $40 a week is not a sum to conjure with in these days of the high cost of living [illegible] some enterprising publisher [illegible] on the alert for genius [illegible] to persuade McManus to give us his memoirs.

Apart from its deep [illegible] interest [illegible] that we pray to be delivered from is one of the most valuable of human assets. Vanity is the salt of life. If You Have Any Hair or Scalp Trouble-Read This

There has been a mistaken idea for years that frequent washing is bad for the hair, therefore nearly everybody has more or less hair trouble. Practically everybody has dandruff and hundreds have hair that is too oily or dry, or hair that is faded and lifeless. The result is the hair falls out and after that comes baldness. Common soap and common shampoos leave the hair in a worse condition after you use them than it was before. There is one preparation for the hair, however, that is so good that the ingredients are printed on the package. It is called Birt's Head Wash and is made of Refined Soap, Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin, Salicylic Acid and nothing else.

Constipation Results When Hot Weather Stops Exercise

WHEN the system has become accustomed to a certain daily routine of exercise and food, health is quick to suffer if that routine is interfered with. The bowels are first to notice the change.

Different water is enough to constipate. Changes of food when traveling, much sitting by those accustomed to long walks will do it. It is especially true that when elderly people change their routine they quickly become constipated. Yet elderly people should be particularly careful to keep their bowels open, especially during the hot months.

A better remedy for the purpose cannot be found on a druggist's shelf than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin which trains the stomach-muscles to do their work naturally so that medicines can be dispensed with. Only a small dose is needed, and unlike harsh physics and cathartics, it acts gently and without griping.

A bottle of Syrup Pepsin can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1, the latter the family size, or a free trial bottle will be sent on receipt of your address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 460 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Stocks Weaken Under Labor Demands and Crop Reports

RAIL AND STEEL ISSUES LEAD DECLINE

Market Active Under Bear Pressure All Along the Line

By W. H. ROSS,
FINANCIAL EDITOR.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, many issues being at their lowest prices at the end of the morning. The market failed to rally during the first hour, but was given a little more support in the second. But before 12 o'clock bears made another drive and prices yielded again. Standard issues and specialties were under pressure alike.

Rails and steels were among the weakest groups. U. S. Steel was off 3 at 105¾ at noon. Its lowest for the morning was 106⅝. Its highest was 108¾. It opened at 108⅝ to 108¾.

Among largest declines at noon were Bethlehem B, 4⅜ at 89¾; Crucible, 3½ at 130½; Baldwin, 4½ at 107; Woolen common, 5¾ at 116¼; International Paper, 3 at 61½; Central Leather, 2¾ at 107½; Mexican Petroleum, 4⅝ at 184½; Pan American, 3 at 111; Texas & Pacific, 3¾ at 57; New Haven, 2½ at 35; Reading, 4½ at 83; New York Central, 3 at 75¾; Union Pacific, 3½ at 128; Studebaker, 3¾ at 106¼; United Cigar Stores, 4½ at 217½; U. S. Food Products, 3¾ at 82¼, and Stromberg, 6⅝ at 85¼.

Call money opened at 6 per cent.

RAILROADS LEAD DECLINE.

Weakness at the opening was attributed to the demands of railroad labor and was naturally reflected by standard rails. But steel, oil, motor, tobacco and ship issues also sagged at once, and at the end of half an hour declines varied from fractions to nearly seven points. Orders to sell accumulated over the holidays. The labor campaign at Washington to force living costs down or wages up changed speculative sentiment quickly. It was bullish when the market closed on Friday, but decidedly bearish at the reopening today. Selling pressure was applied all along the line. Among issues to weaken the most in early trading were Reading, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Atchison, New Haven, New York Central, Baldwin, Republic Steel, Crucible, Bethlehem B, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Studebaker, Kelly-Springfield, Central Leather, United Cigar Stores, American Tobacco, Inspiration, Mexican Petroleum and Stromberg.

TRADING WAS PROFESSIONAL.

The market was made by the professional element. There was selling at the opening on behalf of the public, but the reaction of last week had evidently eliminated most weak holdings. Bears had an opportunity to make a general onslaught and lost no time in making the most of it. Aside from the attempt of railway brotherhoods to bring about government ownership of rails and the shopmen's strike, crop reports were unfavorable as regards grains as well as cotton. All contributed to the depression of security prices. The market was active, first hour transactions totaling nearly 450,000 shares. The short interest is now larger than it has been for many weeks.

Harmony in Zinc Trade

The organization of the American Zinc Institute denotes harmony in the zinc trade, it representing both producers and smelters. Its object is to unify the industry, gather trade statistics, and conduct research and other work which will extend the use of zinc. George C. Stone, who has been connected with the New Jersey Zinc Company and the War Industries Board, is on the way to Europe to represent the Institute.

Cotton Market Very Weak

New York, Aug. 4.—After a fairly steady opening, with prices 28 to 38 points lower, the cotton market ran into stop orders and became very weak, selling off 65 points from Saturday's close on some of the active positions. At the end of the first twenty minutes December had fallen to 33.60, or a net decline of 90 points. Opening prices were: September offered 34.00; October, 34.00; December, 34.15; January, 34.10; March, 34.08; May, 34.02.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Opening prices on the Board of Trade were: Corn—September, 1.82 to 1.80; December, 1.53¾ to 1.51. Oats—September, 73½ to 72⅝; December, 75⅝ to 74⅞. Lard—September, 32.00 to 31.95. Ribs—September, 26.75.

Downward Movement Here Reflects Selling Pressure on Big Bourse

Following New York's lead the Boston market was weak at the outset. Boston & Albany was soon showing almost two points loss and New Haven had declined more than two. Among weak issues were United Fruit, U. S. Smelting, Calumet & Arizona, Copper Range and Butte, Mohawk, Massachusetts Gas, Swift & Co., Root & Vandervoort, St. Mary's Mineral Land, Mexican Investments and Allouez. They receded from one to three points. United Fruit and Mohawk showed the largest early losses.

United Shoe and Waldorf were active, but did not recede far during the morning. The market showed slight rallying power, but prices were firmer in the second hour.

GERMANS BIDDING FOR MALT IN AMERICA

"There is no prospect of Germany 'going dry.'" Brewers there are preparing to resume business on a pre-war scale, but are short of all kinds of supplies. They are bidding for malt in this country, and the amount wanted is understood to approximate 10,000,000 bushels.

American maltsters are seeking security for payment before they will make contracts with Germans. One large concern refused an order because the buyer would not offer New York funds for spot payment.

WARREN COTTON MILLS PLAN BIG EXTENSIONS

West Warren, Aug. 4.—The Casper Ranger Construction Company of Holyoke has started work on a $300,000 construction job at the plant of the Warren Cotton Mills. The contract is for extension and new construction buildings and is expected to be completed before January 1.

Strike Affected Sugar

The shipping strike affected refiners by curtailing the supply of raw sugar which comes from Cuba. There was not much more than a week's supply at Atlantic ports when vessels were tied up. Melting at some refineries has fallen below normal because of the shortage of raws. But it is believed all can continue operations from 25 to 50 per cent. of normal until new cargoes arrive.

July Oil Wells

Oil wells completed during July numbered 2,618, according to the Oil City Derrick. New production increased 94,817 barrels. Gas producers were brought in to the number of 193. Dry holes totalled 629.

CROP SCARE IS ON HAND AS USUAL

Gloomy Reports as to the Blighting of Wheat and Oats

Crop scares are a prelude to every harvest. Sometimes they are justified, often only exaggerations by speculators in grain. Usually reports of blighting influences, whether weather or parasitical, are overdrawn. The present crop scare is given more than ordinary consideration because of the excessive cost of food. There was jubilation earlier in the season when the government report indicated large grain yields. Bumper harvests would help reduce the high cost of living.

It would warrant expectation of cheaper bread, poultry, eggs, bacon, ham and many other edibles. Big crops would be a boon not only to this country but to all Europe, where war has interfered with agriculture in some countries for five years and in others practically stopped it altogether.

WHEAT AND OATS OUTLOOK.

Now it is reported that the wheat yield may be 932,000,000 bushels only instead of 1,161,000,000 bushels forecast by the government's latest report.

The oats crop is estimated at 1,309,000,000 bushels instead of 1,403,000,000.

But news from corn fields is not so gloomy. The corn crop may even surpass the forecast and total 2,902,000,000 bushels. The forecast calls for but 2,815,130,000. Corn is now in the critical stage of its growth. Rainfall has been sufficient in most sections and what is feared most now is hot winds. But the latest weather reports from the corn belt are unfavorable. Abundance of corn might cut down pork prices as many Western farmers feed it to stock when it is plenty. But while it is quoted at nearly $2 a bushel, live stock is not likely to get a chance to fatten on this cereal. Hogs sold last week in Chicago at $23.60 a hundred weight, the highest recorded price. They were not corn fed either.

WHY WHEAT DETERIORATED.

Deterioration of wheat has been due to blight, drought, rust, scab and grasshoppers. At the worst the total yield of the United States and Canada might be from 300,000,000 to 400,000,000 bushels less than was expected a month ago.

In this country oats were subjected to extreme heat at the period of growth when such weather was most damaging. Wherever oats have been threshed this year farmers have been disappointed by yield and weight. In Western Canada, particularly in Alberta and Saskatchewan, the crop has suffered from lack of rain.

The review of the grain situation given above is based upon private reports. The indicated yield of cotton, according to the Department of Agriculture, is but 11,016,000 bales, compared with 12,040,532 last year. Condition on July 25 was estimated at 67.1, compared with a ten-year average of 76.1. There has been too much rain in the belt. The boll weevil has wrought great damage.

GOVERNMENT STATISTICS SHOW FOOD PRICES RISE

Washington has not provided the public with any relief from high prices, but it has been busy compiling statistics. One bureau reports what every purveyor for a family table knows to his or her impoverishment. For instance:

Since 1913 the average cost of food has advanced 88 per cent. Sugar has gone up 109 per cent.; pork chops and ham, 103 per cent. each; bacon, 107 per cent.; potatoes, 111 per cent.; corn meal, 125 per cent.; flour, 127 per cent.; lard, 154 per cent.

Within a year the average cost of food advanced 14 per cent.; specific increases being: Onions, 133 per cent.; prunes, 53 per cent.; coffee, 41 per cent.; potatoes, 31 per cent.; cheese, 28 per cent.; eggs, 26 per cent.; butter, 21 per cent.; lard, 23 per cent.; sugar, 16 per cent.; milk, 15 per cent.; flour, 12 per cent.

At the end of the week announcement came from Chicago that all retail dealers in that riotous city had agreed to advance milk and cream a cent a quart. As usual they "passed the buck." They alleged they were forced to raise their rates because dairy farmers had increased wholesale prices. The dairymen point in defence to what it costs to feed cows, and here and there in that quarter is heard the suggestion that hygienic laws have also increased the cost of lacteal production.

In fact, there are grumblers who say that wherever and whenever there is legislation regulating production some expense is put upon the producer which he never fails to pass along to the consumer. Too often, it is alleged also, he employes the occasion to tuck on excess profit.

PROHIBITION PREVENTS CARRYING OUT OF WILL

Portland, Ore., Aug. 4.—Now that July 1 has come and gone one provision of the will of the late Gustave Glaser cannot be complied with.

He willed "I do give and bequeath unto the German Veterans (Verband Deutscher Veteran der North Pacific Staaten) the sum of $50 to enable them to participate at my funeral with their flags and to have after the funeral a solemn draught in the true German fashion."

The estate was valued at $10,000.

N. Y. Sub-Treasury Gain.

New York, Aug. 4.—The sub-treasury gained $64,000 from the banks on Saturday, making the cash net gain since Friday $1,134,000.

NEW MUSICAL COMEDY IS BIG HIT

"See-Saw" Delights Large Audience at the Tremont Theatre

By FRED J. McISAAC,
DRAMATIC EDITOR.

"See-Saw" is a hit. That is, I think it is a hit, because it pleased the audience at the Tremont Saturday night very much indeed. I liked it myself and all the folks in my vicinity seemed to be having a good time.

Colonel Henry W. Savage, who rarely picks a poor musical comedy, is the producer of "See-Saw." The writer of the book and lyric is Earl Derr Biggers, a clever youth who once hung up his hat in a Boston newspaper office. He is thrifty as well, for he constructed "See-Saw" out of a novel which he wrote a few years ago entitled "Love Insurance."

I don't believe he wrote the title, because it has nothing whatsoever to do with the show. It sounds like a name invented by Colonel Savage himself about 2 o'clock in the morning when he was all tired out by rehearsing.

SCORE BRIGHT AND SPIRITED.

The music was composed by Louis Hirsch. He wrote "Going Up," "The Rainbow Girl" and "Oh, My Dear," which is now in town. It is a very bright and spirited score. Mr. Hirsch used all his regular tunes that served him so well in "Going Up" and "The Rainbow Girl," and has offered several others which I didn't recognize immediately.

However, if a gentleman can't raid his own larder, whose larder can he raid?

The really newsy portion of this review relates to the book and lyrics. Biggers has written a first class book. As a first class libretto for a musical comedy hasn't been turned out since the Germans invaded Belgium, that is news indeed, and ought to be in the first paragraph if I were on to my job.

The theme is rather novel, the story amusing, the dialogue full of bright, snappy lines, with laughs hanging upon the ends of them. The lyrics are as smart as anything I have heard for several seasons, and old Colonel Savage has skilfully plugged up a few leaks in the plot with some ingenious specialties.

CHORUS OF DASHING GIRLS.

The show opens aboard a private yacht chartered by a rather conventional English lord to convey his fiancee and her family to Florida, where they are to be married. The cabin of the yacht is so large that it would take a ship like the Yiddish transport Levi Athian to cart it around.

Large quantities of dashing girls clad in the vivid and inspiring costumes that Savage can always be depended upon to supply whisk in and out, and display well-rounded limbs with great liberality.

His lordship has managed to insure his prospective marriage at Lloyds for $100,000, and the insurance broker supplies a representative to see that nothing interferes with the wedding. The insurance man falls in love with the fiancee, and provides action for two acts and three scenes.

A DAINTY HEROINE.

The boys and girls on the stage are all agreeable. Dorothea Mackaye, who was here in "The Very Idea," as the idiot wife, makes a dainty heroine. Miss Mackaye can sing a little and dance pretty well, and her speaking voice is one of her best assets.

Frank Carter a rather rough youth who sings stridently but dances miraculously, is the insurance representative. Charles Meakins has comparatively little to do, but as an obstreperous press agent he does that little well.

Charles Brown is a bit withered for an English Lord but funny enough, and Mabel Bunyea, as an English music hall vampire, was amusing.

A toe dance by Ella Danaher actually stopped the show for a few minutes, and a crap shooting quintet composed of Jimmie Parker and the Twentieth Century Four was a riot.

TO SPEND $375,000,000 ON HIGHWAYS THIS YEAR

This country is engaging in the greatest highway construction campaign ever known. Expenditures for road construction and improvement this year will total $375,000,000. This is almost as much as it cost the government to dig and equip the Panama Canal. The road appropriations have been made by the Federal government, by States and counties.

Massachusetts alone will expend $6,000,000, Connecticut $8,000,000, Rhode Island $1,470,000, Vermont $1,737,650, New Hampshire $1,630,000 and Maine $1,630,000. Texas tops all States with total appropriations of $60,480,000.

Steel for Car Shops

Demand for railroad cars is increasing not only in this country but in Europe, the Orient and South America. The Chilean government will place an order for 600 freight cars in this country as soon as a $30,000,000 loan can be placed. Car shops are requiring more steel, contracts having been placed by them and railroads for 40,000 tons of structural plates and shapes for new construction and repair work.

OVERSEAS MEN PRAISED BY MRS. BOOTH

Were Finest Ever, "Little Mother" Tells North Shore Society Folk

Manchester-by-the-Sea, Aug. 4.—"I found them the most splendid company of men I have ever had the privilege to meet," said Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America, speaking here in praise of the American Expeditionary Forces overseas.

Mrs. Booth made two addresses before North Shore audiences, at the Manchester Congregational Church, the Rev. F. W. Manning, officiating, and at the Oceanside Hotel, Magnolia.

Society people in great numbers flocked to hear the inspiring message Mrs. Booth brought, and more than one prominent society woman approached Mrs. Booth afterwards to thank her for the work she was doing among prisoners.

MAKE GENEROUS OFFERING.

The society folk showed their interest in this work by a generous offering.

Mrs. Booth spent six months last Winter in France, her headquarters being at Verdun. She told how the idea came to her to have a "Mothers' Book" for the soldiers to write letters to their mother in. Then Mrs. Booth would enclose with the doughboy's letter to his mother a note saying that she had seen her boy.

"The power behind the A. E. F. was not the wealth and influence of this great nation," she said, "not all that Uncle Sam had put into that equipment—the power behind the A. E. F. that kept the boys in the battlefields and afterwards was the power of the American home, was American ideals and the American mother."

TELLS HOW BOYS MADE GOOD.

Mrs. Booth described several meetings over there with boys who had been her "boys" in prison previously. She told how they made good in the service of their country.

Two in particular she mentioned, in the same company of marines, neither of whom knew the other's past.

They came up to her after one of her "mother" talks. Both had been through the thickest of the fighting, been wounded, cited, and decorated.

"I think, Little Mother, I have made good," said one of them. "Don't you think that by this service I have redeemed the past?"

Mrs. Booth was sure he had, as had many others of her prison boys.

Mrs. Booth is now traveling about raising funds for the Hope Hall League in connection with her prison work.

TO SUPPORT SERVICE MEN ONLY FOR OFFICE

With the purpose that no candidate for public office shall receive their support unless he has been in the service of his country during the war, the Pontiac Association, composed of ex-service men, was formed in the Meeting House Hill district. The following officers were elected: Charles J. Clouse, president; George J. Coyle, vice-president; Arthur Cohen, secretary; James M. J. Hurley, treasurer, and the following board of directors: Lionel Cohen, John J. Dudley, James E. Stanley, John Barre and Edward Lowe. The organization indorsed the candidacy of Francis X. Sheehan for the House of Representatives from Ward 18, Dorchester.

TO FORM NEW BRANCH OF IRISH FREEDOM FRIENDS

Representative Michael J. Reidy presided at a large meeting at the Old Blake House, Edward Everett square, Dorchester, under the auspices of the Friends of Irish Freedom, the purpose of the meeting being to form a branch of this organization in north Dorchester. Among the speakers were William M. O'Brien of the Public Service Commission, William S. McNary of the Hanover Trust Company, and Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy.

50 FLEE NORTH END FIRE SCANTILY CLAD

Approximately fifty persons living in the three-story brick tenement house at No. 158 Endicott street, North End, were driven into the street early today, clad in their night clothes, by a fire which caused $100 damage to the rooms of Veto Descarescenzo. The blaze filled the building with smoke.

Manchester Mother, 95 Years Old, Seeks Missing Son

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Mary Connolly, ninety-five, of Myrtle street, has been watching and waiting for the return of her son who left here five years ago. Almost daily the old lady appears at the city clerk's office in City Hall seeking news of her son. City Clerk O'Brien has been helping her in her vain search.

Mrs. Connolly has watched Manchester grow from a cow pasture with a few shacks here and there to the present city of 85,000 people, the largest city in northern New England.

Surrender to Japan Will Make the United States the Objective in the Next Great War

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29, 1919.

The Japanese revelations surely justify our attitude and all our predictions.

The great problem before the white races is not whether boundaries of white nations in Europe shall run this way or that way, but whether Japan shall absorb and organize Asia for the conquest of the world.

We know that the average American does not realize the situation any more than the average European realizes it, but that is exactly what Japan is trying to do, and what Europe is blindly and stupidly helping her to do.

The ignorant and dull and indifferent say that the yellow races, even under the military dominion of Japan, can never overrun the world. But the yellow races in the past have tried to conquer the world, and on at least three great historical occasions have come within a hair's breadth of doing it.

Who shall say that the stupidities and jealousies of the white peoples, which have reached an unbelievable degree of madness and blindness, shall not some day create a situation which will arouse the yellow races to succeed?

How imbecile it is, how criminally idiotic, for the white races of Europe to be contending in arms and wasting their blood and treasure and destroying the fruits of centuries of civilization in an idle and empty attempt to decide which nation shall dominate Europe, when no nation ever does dominate Europe for long, and when no nation ever should dominate Europe at all.

What chaos would reign in America if the nation of New York were contending with the nation of Illinois as to which would dominate this continent of ours, and if a lot of other nations from Maine to California were dragged into the suicidal conflict.

We have avoided all this folly and fury and futility by creating the United States of America, in which brotherly union no State contends with another, except in friendly industrial and intellectual competition, and all labor in unison for the common good.

Why should there not be a United States of Europe?

Why should this country, which has experienced the advantages of union, insist on cutting up Europe into a perfect hash of small, striving, slaughtering states, instead of endeavoring to unite it into a harmonious whole?

The United States of Europe and the United States of America could then co-operate for the protection of the white man's institutions and the development of the white man's civilization to guard democracy from despotism, liberty from tyranny, Christianity and morality from Oriental depravity.

But instead of the white races uniting for the liberty and humanity and Christianity which the white races profes to hold as ideals, Germany leads the Turks in the massare of European Christians, and England secretly unitesswith Japan with the single object of threatening the interes and independence of the United States of America.

Ina hundred years these European nations have not advanced a step in international propriety and decency. For her ownadvantage, England would incite Japan to murder our people today as readily as she incited the savage Indians to butche the colonists during our struggle for independence. Th Japanese situation is a genuine danger, more immediate to America, but ultimately to the whole white world. Upn us will fall the first burden of the battle for the white nn's civilization, and we must be able and ready to bear thatburden alone because the envies and hatreds of European ations, aggravated by the astounding folly of our course aParis, will make them in the future, still more than in the ast, rather our enemies than our friends.

Our Returning Fighters Are Entitled to Even Break

Moderately reckoned, it costs a returned soldier $100 to equip himself with clothing for civil life. Figure it for yourself:

Two suits	$60
Six shirts	12
Four suits underwear	8
One pair shoes	8
One hat	5
Six pairs socks	3
Ties	2
Collars	2
Total	$100

Uncle Sam gives him $60. He is thus at least $40 out of pocket. For 4,000,000 service men—soldiers, sailors, marines—that would mean a loss of $160,000,000 on top of all that they had to lose by way of income and comfort while in the war.

The proposal of the Hearst newspapers that the government give them six months' pay would, for the great majority, mean enough money to re-clothe properly in "civies" and have a stake upon which to lean while getting a job.

The government, which took these men out of jobs and risked their lives, ought certainly to put them back with an even break.

There is plenty of profit, made by protected stay-at-homes while these men fought, to pay the bill.

Democracy in Germany

On motion of Frau Agnus, of the German National Assembly, a law has been passed prohibiting any person who is a member of any family which has ruled in any part of Germany from ever becoming president of the German Republic.

Thus not only is the entire Hohenzollern family excluded from the right which belongs to the humblest German child, girl or boy, but princes and princelings of every German State are excluded from the right belonging to every boy and girl in the German states to become president.

Premier Bauer also announced that his program included "socialization of German industries as far as possible," and gave assurances that "every one would get food and clothing and that the importation of luxuries would be prohibited."

The motion prohibiting members of royal families from becoming candidates for president in the German Republic was made by a woman, a member of the National Assembly, Germany's highest legislative body.

Thus far has Germany advanced toward political and economic democracy, but of the nine nations that hold seats in the Council of the League of Nations that is to rule the world only three are republics, while six are monarchies or autocracies.

WHEN YOUR HUSBAND GETS AN OFFICE

Mrs. Selfish Wife, has the thought ever come to you that you may be the cause of your husband's failure to get the public or the lodge position which he wants?

Your husband's name may have been suggested for some place of honor and trust and the fact that you are so little interested may have caused his name to be dropped.

The man honored by an office rendered through the good-will of his friends enjoys not only the sense of a certain popularity, but the office becomes an actual asset in other walks of life.

Why should a wife object to such tokens of appreciation?

Selfishly, because it takes husband away from home, perhaps.

But considered from the standpoint of helpful instruction and experience worth while for a man among men, the right sort of a wife will do anything within reason to assist her life companion to make the most of himself.

Stars and Stripes

Fools rush in where angels can see that it's the other fellows' game.

Either a child or a nation that is bribed to be good will want a bigger bribe the next time.

If you want a man to think well of you, never try to "change the conversation" when he is talking about himself.

The President says he is a bit alarmed at the number of speeches he has in his system undelivered. Usually the alarm begins after the speeches are out.

The Prince of Wales is going to improve housing conditions on his ducal estates. It appears that he tried to rent a house a few months ago, and now knows how it is himself.

A proposal has been made in the French Chamber of Deputies to impose the death penalty upon profiteers. Unless the proposition is squelched immediately some people will refuse to believe that France was worth saving.

Taking the former Kaiser to England for trial may serve for a time to turn attention away from Ireland; but the trial can't last forever.

If you are inclined sometimes to be dissatisfied with your town, think of Philadelphia, with two ball-end baseball teams. But even there people continue to look at the scoreboards and cling to hope.

The Chinese, it seems, used the finger print method of identification sixteen centuries ago. But it took the modern occidentals to ring in all the changes of novelization, dramatization and picturization.

A Berlin paper is saying some nasty things because American soldiers are marrying German girls. There are lots of American girls who will perhaps be eager now to subscribe for the Berlin paper.

The war, it is reported, has left London with a great shortage of skilled bell-ringers. Which no doubt will bring from those who like to sleep late on Sundays the declaration that war is not always without its advantages.

News for the Wheat Belt Government Your Milkman Shepherd and Smooth Wolves All Right Some Day

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1919.

The country will try experiments, new and interesting.

Having raised the price of wheat by law and compelled the public to pay the raise, the government now proposes to lower the price by law and compel the farmers to sell at the lower price. You can compel farmers to charge less, but you cannot compel farmers to raise wheat. There is the point that should not be overlooked. Can you imagine what is going to happen to the farmer vote in the wheat belt, as much of it as is Democratic?

Number two. The government will sell surplus army food direct to the people, in small lots at less than cost, and deliver by parcel post. There is a step to make public monopolies howl. Government distributing food and not even a little rake off for the private express company. Call out the anarchy squad.

If the people ruled and managed their affairs instead of being ruled by public corporations through public officials, what a good suggestion would be found in that distribution of food by parcel post; what a cutting down of high cost, eliminating useless distributing expense, without curtailment of individual initiative.

The milk trust has its grip on the people through distribution and not otherwise. Keeping up a pretence of competition, it sends different milk wagons to the same block. Its stockholders are manufacturers of milk bottles, as the telephone "insiders" are makers of telephone apparatus. Therefore it is profitable to smash as many milk bottles as possible. The consumer pays for the smashing and all the extra wagons and wasteful methods.

Milk delivered by parcel post, as it should be, would give all the profit to the farmer, who ought to get it, and all the economy to the consumer. The milk trust, which kills more children than consumption, and causes consumption, would be out of business. That will not come yet, for all those great interests are interlocking, all stick together and they rule, even when, as at present, an honest man stands at the head of the government.

If the people through the Post-office Department did their own distributing, how quickly the cost of living would come down. Now, what you eat costs from three to ten times what the farmer gets for it. With government distributing food, returning empty containers, collecting from the consumer and remitting to the producer, food would cost perhaps 25 per cent. instead of 200 to 1,000 per cent. more than the producer gets. At this moment government agents, the letter carriers, visit every house in the United States. The delivery system is ready.

It would take brains and conscience to organize the thing successfully, and the profiteering hyenas who think the people were made for them would have to be run down. But it will be done. And it may happen soon, for hunger and worry drive men and nations rapidly.

If some man of ability, not taking as advisors Wall Street gamblers or copper and power monopolists, would first get a hearing, then run for President on the platform "Government power and organization for the people, not for the profiteers," he would surprise many.

To realize how gently and smoothly public corporations work their games in the face of official honesty, observe two facts. Govment took over railroads and the wires.

Private owners of railroads are getting their dividends from the government, from your pocket, through taxation, while the people pay the deficit, hundreds of millions a year. The owners and their railroads would be bankrupt if the government gave the railroads back. The government, you observe, keeps the railroads, and you, the taxpayers, go on paying the deficit, while private owners draw their highest dividends from bankrupt properties.

Private owners of telephones and telegraphs can run these properties at a profit. No wonder, since the telephone charges to carry your voice over a wire more than the railroad charges to carry your whole body from one terminal to another.

Because they can be run profitably private owners of the wire monopoly want back their wires, and they get them back. Can you imagine how smoothly the advisers, imported to Washington from the Wall Street gambling hell, manipulate all this. It is as though a shepherd, simple in heart, trusting others, had said to himself: "I have sheep in my care. I have noticed that wolves pay attention to sheep and seem to know a lot about them. I shall not be conceited and trust myself. I'll get a few smooth-coated wolves to drop in and advise me."

They dropped in, and they are there yet.

A man from Mars, reading news down here, might report to the home folks a permanently dismal state of affairs on earth.

But he would be wrong. The earth, and this country especially, are all right, and will prove it, slowly, in the future as in the past. In America we have a majority able to read and write. A strong minority can even read intelligently. A smaller minority can think constructively, and two or three per cent., perhaps, can stick to a determination and keep up interest in the hereafter, having accumulated their own pile. That is all a nation needs in the long run. The profiteers have public dullness on their side. But the people have time with them and also (forgive the old fashioned word) justice.
